Medicare Leaps First Hurdle

OTTAWA (CP) — The medicare insurance bill received approval in principle by a vote of 182 to 21 in the Commons Tuesday night.

The Conservative and Social Credit parties split on second reading after an acrimonious eight-day debate.

The bill was opposed by 10 Conservatives, seven Creditists, two Social Credit members and two independents.

The legislation still requires clause-by-clause study and third reading, which could be a lengthy process since opposition parties have promised to introduce many amendments.

Ottawa Conference

This Is Day They Walk On Eggs

By RON COLLISTER,
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This is the day that makes or breaks the federal-provincial conference here.

The federal government was to make its final, take-it-or-leave-it proposals in two crucial areas:

• The phasing out of Ottawa aid for vocational and technical schools over a six-year period starting next March.

Many of the provinces were bitterly critical of the impact of this on them, and Ottawa agreed to reconsider this particular proposal. (See story on Page 15.)

LUNA XII CIRCLES MOON

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters) — The Soviet space shot Luna XII went into orbit around the moon at 1:47 p.m. EDT Tuesday, scientists at the Jodrell Bank radio-telescope reported.

Luna XII, launched Saturday, may be the Soviet Union's first lunar orbiting craft to carry cameras to take close-up pictures of the moon's surface, though its mission has not been defined.

MOSCOW (AFP) — The Soviet news agency Tass confirmed today that the Soviet satellite Luna XII has gone into orbit around the moon.

Virus Halts Vanier Trip

OTTAWA (CP) — A virus infection has forced Governor-General Vanier to cancel his engagements for the next few days and also postpone a visit to Prince Edward Island next week, it was announced Tuesday.

Mail Trucks Keep Crown

Leaf Plan Withers

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday that the government has backed away from a post office plan to remove the Canadian coat-of-arms and the words royal mail from postal trucks.

He sparked a Commons uproar when he charged that the Liberals "remove the Crown" at every opportunity. They "endeavored, by stealth, to get away with this and got caught." Now the government was taking its usual course — running away.

Acting Prime Minister Martin angrily denied that the government has taken steps to remove references to the Queen. He said Liberals are as loyal to the Queen as is the Conservative chief.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux had trouble keeping order.

The unscheduled debate began when Postmaster-General Cote read a four-page statement saying information from his department formed the basis for an Oct. 13 report that the coat-of-arms and the words royal mail gradually would be replaced by a maple leaf emblem on postal trucks.

This had been published before the matter could be studied by the cabinet, however, and he regretted any misunderstandings. He had ordered the preparation of a simple symbol for the post office, but had no intention of interfering with the proper use of any existing symbol.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the postmaster-general's explanation "just cannot hold water."

He read a Commons exchange of Oct. 14 when Mr. Cote, asked whether the coat-of-arms would be removed and replaced by another symbol, had replied:

"Yes, Mr. Speaker. We are going to adopt an emblem which will represent a truly Canadian post office and which will give a real interpretation to the post office act."

NDP Leader Douglas said the Liberals again were showing "their genius for stumbling from crisis to crisis."

Did Ottawa Approve?

CAR LOOPHOLE LET IN 10,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury told the Commons Tuesday the revenue department is conducting a "semi-judicial investigation" into a car import transaction involving Studebaker and Volkswagen.

Revenue Minister Benson confirmed that the transaction is under investigation.

Neither minister offered a direct reply when T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, asked whether they were aware the transaction involved Studebaker of Canada buying Volkswagens in the U.S., importing them into Canada duty-free under the Canada-U.S. auto agreement and then reselling them to Volkswagen at a "handsome profit."

MOTION REJECTED

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux disallowed a motion by Alfred Hales (PC — Wellington South) for an emergency debate on the issue.

Mr. Drury, Mr. Benson, External Affairs Minister Marois and John Turner, minister without portfolio, all argued against an emergency debate.

DEAL MADE

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) said Studebaker, in the throes of going out of business at Hamilton, made a deal with another company to evade duty and that the government was party to the deal.

Mr. Benson said a letter was written to officials of his department asking whether a transaction would fall under the terms of the car treaty, which permits Canadian car manufacturers to import foreign cars or parts duty-free.

A department official had replied that if the transaction was carried out in a certain way it would fall under the terms.

THE QUESTION

The question now is, Mr. Benson said, whether the transaction was carried out in conformity with the opinion given by the department official.

Mr. Benson did not reveal the names of the writer of the original letter or of the official who replied.

Labor Wins Freeze

LONDON (UPI) — The House of Commons Tuesday night approved the Labor government's compulsory freeze on wages and prices by a vote of 307-239.

The order made violators liable to $1,400 fine. An estimated 26 Labor left-wingers, led by former technology minister Frank Cousins who sees the freeze as unwarranted state interference with the right of the trade union bargaining powers, defied a parliamentary order and abstained from voting.

They will probably face disciplinary action from the Labor members of parliament and could be expelled.

Fights Inevitable

All Those Socks Could Mean Wedded Bliss

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A spirited spat is good for most marriages, a psychiatrist said Tuesday, but watch out for overkill.

"Marriage fights have the character of a pitched battle," said Dr. Alfred D. Messer.

"Not only does one want to defeat the opposition, but defeat him so soundly that he will never rise again."

He told the American Psychiatric Association convention that arguments are inevitable in a marriage and probably offer one of the best ways couples have to work out touchy problems.

"Two individuals who live intimately together must occasionally frustrate one another," said Messer, an Emory University professor.

Neither spouse makes much of these problems — toothpaste tubes squeezed in the middle, dirty socks on the floor, burned potatoes, broken budgets — until they build up to a flashpoint, Messer said.

"There is an explosion," he said. "One partner will then drag out a catalogue of these incidents in an attempt to 'slay' the other partner."

"What is said in the heat of battle cannot, of course, be taken as the whole truth," he said. Husband and wife must keep in mind the theme of the fight and not concentrate too hard on the particulars.

"When most of the frustrations have been talked out or discharged in some vicarious way," he said, the fight can be ended. At this point one partner will release a coy dove of peace.

"The gesture itself may be quite innocuous. A woman may decide to bake a particular food her husband likes, or mend his sock; a husband may decide to buy a particular household item the couple had talked about purchasing. "The other member should recognize that failure to respond to this gesture will probably mean another round of fighting will begin."

Manila Says Peace Ball 'Now in Hanoi's Court'

MANILA (AP) — The seven anti-Communist allies with troops fighting in South Viet Nam have resolved to pursue the war there "until the Communist aggression is ended," but offered then to withdraw foreign forces within six months if North Viet Nam pulls out of the south and violence ebbs.

The offer bore down on the central argument raised by the Communist side — that the United States intends to stay indefinitely and that no peace is possible without American withdrawal.

The offer was in a final communiqué of the seven-country anti-Communist summit meeting in Manila, which also produced a statement on the Goals of Freedom and a Declaration of Peace and Progress in Asia and the Pacific.

SUMMING UP

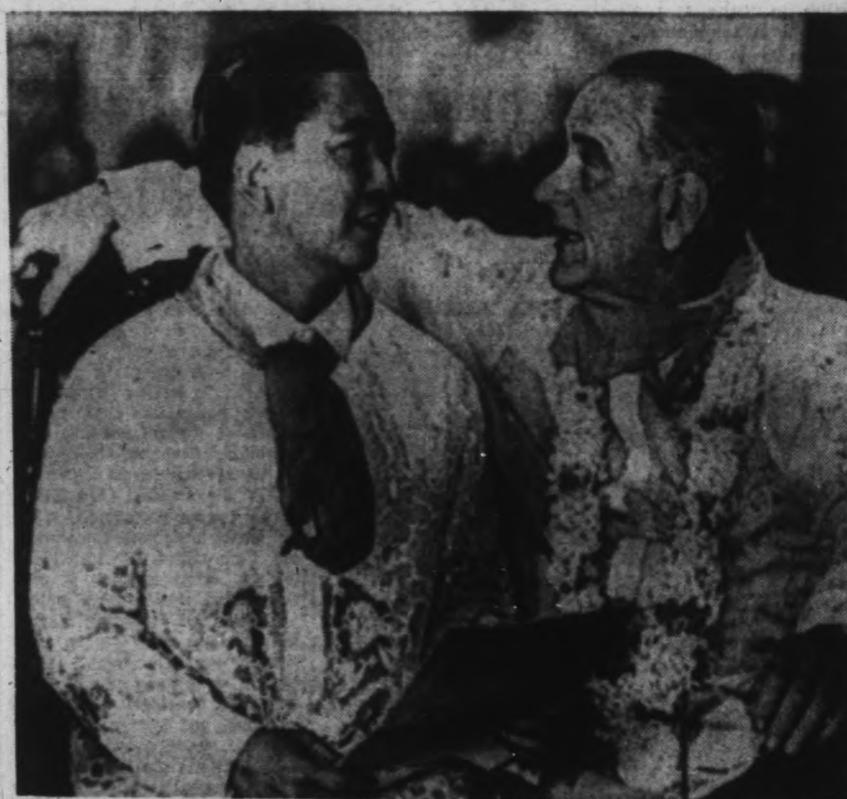

Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand summed it up: "The ball is now in North Viet Nam's court."

Concerning the anti-Communist foreign forces in South Viet Nam, now numbering 370,000, the communiqué said:

"They shall be withdrawn, after close consultation, as the other side withdraws its forces to the north, ceases infiltration and the level of violence thus subsides. Those forces will be withdrawn as soon as possible and not later than six months after the above conditions have been fulfilled."

The South Vietnamese government subscribed to the withdrawal, but its own qualification was embodied in the communiqué. It said South Viet Nam, mindful of past experience, would "insist that any negotiations leading to the end of hostilities be conducted on the basis of the following principles:

'Don't Let Them Bury Truth'

Grieving Miners Accost Investigator

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — Two angry miners who lost relatives in the Aberfan coal slag disaster broke through a police cordon Tuesday and accosted the Welsh-born judge who will conduct Britain's public inquiry into the tragedy.

"Don't let them pull the wool over your eyes," shouted Philip Brown, 61.

Lord Justice Sir Edmund Davies, born only a few miles from Aberfan, was paying his first visit since a towering slag heap slid down on the village school and nearby homes Friday, killing nearly 200 children.

Police tried to hold back the two miners but Davies beckoned them forward. He listened intently as David Jones, 40, told him:

"We couldn't stand the thought of the truth being hidden under a pack of lies. This whole terrible business was unnecessary — we've been complaining about the tip (slag heap) for years."

Both miners told the judge that a mountain spring, which is thought to have caused the heap to collapse, was long known to be in existence.

Bereaved parents and other residents of Aberfan have blamed the national coal board, which runs the Crown-owned mines, for allowing the pile of coal waste to grow to a hazardous size.

Davies told a news conference in nearby Merthyr that he will never allow the public inquiry to become a whitewash.

"The inquiry will be of a most searching character," the judge said. "If there is blame shown, the blame will be cast.

"Nor will there be unnecessary blackening of anybody. We shall be animated by the desire to serve the public interest and nothing else."

With 145 bodies, mostly children, recovered from the shattered school and adjoining houses, police estimated that at least 46 dead children still were to be found.

Thursday, when at least 75 of the child victims will be given a mass burial, was proclaimed a day of mourning throughout the Welsh valleys.

baker demanded to know whether the government had given permission for what he called the mulcting of the public treasury.

Mr. Benson said it had not.

HAVE TO LOOK
Mr. Diefenbaker asked that the letters in question be tabled.

Mr. Benson said he first would have to look at them.

Mr. Hales said in his motion that Canadian taxpayers were short-changed about $1,000,000 by the two car firms.

He said Volkswagen Canada Ltd. and Studebaker Canada Ltd. each saved roughly $500,000 in duties on the deal.

Mr. Benson said if there had been any evasion of duty, corrective action would be taken.

IN WRITING
Mr. Diefenbaker quoted the president of Volkswagen as saying he had misgivings about the transaction and that the company had obtained legal clearance in writing for the deal.

Mr. Douglas said Studebaker had imported 5,000 Volkswagens, evading the 17-per-cent tariff.

He asked whether similar deals had been made by Canadian car companies. Were there other loopholes in the agreement?

FANCY SKATING
Raymond Langlois (Credité - Megaric) said fancy skating around the law should be stopped.

Mr. Drury replied that the Judge Upholds Indian Rights

STEVENS, Wash. (AP)—In a decision restoring exclusive control of Indian fishing in the mid-Columbia River to the Yakima tribal council, Superior Court Judge Ross Rakow found five Indians innocent Tuesday of illegal fishing. Under rights granted the Yakima Nation by an 1855 treaty with the United States, the Indians may fish in "usual and accustomed places," Rakow said.

Stall Needs Food

Victoria's surplus food stall is in the market for anything from a can of beans to a side of beef for its next stall day on Nov. 26 to help feed Greater Victoria's needy.

Food stall operator Mrs. Joan Price said Tuesday that the Christmas party for welfare families' children under 12 years will be held Dec. 11. The time and place will be announced later.

Names of children who plan to attend the party are to be given into the stall at its next opening.

Persons wishing to donate to the food stall can reach Mrs. Price at 479-4870.

revenue department is examining the property or otherwise of the transaction.

Mr. Hales asked whether the revenue department had consulted the justice department about the legality of the deal.

NO DIRECT REPLY
Mr. Benson said he accepted full responsibility in the matter, but gave no direct reply to the question.

Mr. Douglas asked whether new evidence has come to light in the case which caused the departmental investigation.

Mr. Benson said he would not like to prejudice his auditing department, which had started an investigation before the matter was raised in the House Monday. But there seemed to be doubt that the transaction had been carried out in conformity with the opinion given by his departmental officials.

In Toronto, a spokesman for Volkswagen Canada Ltd. said Studebaker Canada Ltd., using its duty-free status, imported about 10,000 Volkswagens into Canada between January and June, 1965.

The spokesman was clarifying his company's earlier statement that the total had been only about 5,000 cars. He said the first figure was an estimate made from memory by Karl Barthis, president of Volkswagen Canada.

The larger total came to light when the company had a chance to check its books Tuesday.

'Official Attitude Changed'

Postal Strike Chance Fading

OTTAWA (CP)—The chance of a postal strike is diminishing, Roger Decarie, president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, indicated Tuesday.

Asked by a reporter whether this was so, he replied: "Yes."

During a parliamentary committee hearing earlier, he battled with MPs about the threatened strike.

"Every morning I get a Christmas card saying 'stop the postal strike,'" Rene Enard (L-Vaudreuil-Soulanges) informed him.

NOT FROM UNIONS

"They aren't from the union," replied Mr. Decarie.

Bert Leboe (SC-Cariboo) asked "why the postal workers couldn't wait to strike until after Christmas 'when the rush is over.'"

"I'll talk to my colleagues about that," said Mr. Decarie.

Mr. Leboe said those who take jobs in essential services like railways or the post office shouldn't even think of striking.

Forklift Launches Walkout
MONTREAL (CP)—At least 1,000 of Montreal's 3,500 longshoremen launched a wildcat walkout Tuesday after a forklift driver was detained by harbor police.

The trouble flared following an incident in which a private detective was severely injured when he was struck by a forklift truck.

In accepting such jobs, they also accepted certain responsibilities.

"If we have duties we also have rights," Mr. Decarie replied. He said at one point he feels the sense of responsibility of postal workers has been taken advantage of in the past.

Wholesaler Tried to Halt Purchases From Japan

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of a wholesale fruit firm admitted in B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday that he had used his influence to try and prevent Loblaw's Ltd. from importing mandarins direct from Japan.

W. C. Cummings, president of Consolidated Fruit Ltd., was giving evidence at the 14th day of a trial in which his company and nine others are charged with fixing mandarin orange prices in Canada.

Cummings admitted under cross-examination he was concerned when he heard that Loblaw's was attempting to import oranges into Canada.

"I used whatever influence I had to stop them from buying direct from Japan," he testified.

He said part of his "influence" was to contact the companies of David McNair and David Oppenheimer Ltd. to "see what could be done."

He also said he had complained to suppliers about the activities of Horne and Pitfield in southern Alberta. Horne and Pitfield, said Cummings, had told other firms they would undercut competition by 10 per cent.

He said he made the complaint because he thought it might "curtail this firm's activities."

"I found this frustrating because I had no price to go on and so I told David McNair about this."

The McNair company is one of the 10 firms, together with Leslie Burrows, secretary of the Canadian Fruit Wholesalers Association, charged with fixing orange prices between 1946 and 1963.

The other eight accused companies are McDonald's, Kelly Douglas, Slade and Stewart, Canada Safeway Ltd., W. H. Malkin Ltd., Dominion Fruit Ltd. and Birks-Crawford Ltd.

The case continues.

Mr. Decarie was anything but the militant union leader about to lead a strike, however.

He told the committee there has been "a complete change of attitude" among postal officials since the Montpetit royal commission report on post office working conditions came out last week.

'DIDN'T SET DATE'

William Kay, president of the 11,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers, was asked for comment on the indication by Mr. Decarie that the chance of a postal strike is diminishing.

He said the hope of his union is for a settlement sometime in November.

However, he added: "If strike action is needed, we would take it by Nov. 15 to avoid inconveniencing the public before Christmas. We didn't set the date for opening pay discussions; the government did."

Karate-Blow Killer Given Life Term

LONDON (Reuters)—A young waiter who killed a man in a fight with seven karate blows in three seconds was sentenced Tuesday to life imprisonment.

Before sentencing the waiter, Anthony Creamer, 20, the judge told the jury that if they believed his statement that karate is a dedicated way of life in which each antagonist sought to cause the death of the other it is time to ban it in Britain.

Creamer said that Andrew Allan, a 20-year-old barman, went berserk after a drinking party and tried to push him through a fifth-storey window.

He pleaded not guilty to murdering Allan, but said he practised karate—a violent sport of Japanese origin for unarmed combat—as a way of life "in the way of dedicated fights—fights to the death."

ities incorporate effective international guarantees.

While offering a road to peace, South Viet Nam's allies vowed that the country would not be conquered by aggressive force.

ALL EFFORTS

"We shall continue our military and all other efforts as firmly and as long as may be necessary, in close consultation among ourselves, until the aggression is ended," the communiqué said.

The communiqué did not show any willingness to cease the bombing of North Viet Nam, as has been demanded at the United Nations. Nor did it mention what part the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam might have in negotiations.

U.S. President Johnson and the government chiefs of Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, South Korea, South Viet Nam and the Philippines also:

pledged themselves to seek together goals of freedom which would include keeping Asia and the Pacific free from aggression, conquering hunger, illiteracy and disease, building a region of security, order and progress and seeking reconciliation and peace throughout the whole region.

Issued a declaration on peace and progress expressing determination that "aggression shall not be rewarded," seeking settlement of the Viet Nam war and stating that "the peace and security of Asia and the Pacific . . . are indivisible."

Set up machinery for consultation among the anti-Communist countries now allied in the Vietnamese war effort. This would work through diplomatic channels and "meetings of their foreign ministers and heads of government . . . as required."

Agreed to work in co-operation with the International Committee of the Red Cross or in "any appropriate forum" to discuss the immediate exchange of Viet Nam prisoners-of-war and the immediate repatriation of sick and wounded prisoners.

American officials said the communiqué made clear — by setting a specific period for a withdrawal—that the U.S. does not intend to remain in South Viet Nam militarily after the North Vietnamese forces leave.

There has been nothing so far from North Viet Nam to indicate that Hanoi is interested in any reciprocal withdrawal, although there have been hints from some Communist European capitals of interest in some sort of approach to talks.

The signing of the documents was the final formal act of the summit meeting.

Lyndon, Imeloa Dance At Conference Fiesta

MANILA (AP)—To the show tune Hello, Dolly! (also known as Hello, Dolly!) President Johnson danced with Imeloa Marcos, wife of the Philippines president amid cheers as the Manila summit conference wound up with a fiesta in President Ferdinand Marcos' palace Tuesday night.

Guests from many nations joined in clapping hands and singing songs like Deep in the Heart of Texas and Waltzing Matilda, from the homelands of the seven summit leaders.

The Bayanihan (Philippine) dance troupe performed, starting out by bedecking the leaders and their ladies with tiaras and crowns of jasmine — scented flowers as they sat at dinner.

Marcos' Malacanang Palace—a sprawling, white stucco edifice on lush grounds—was lighted with thousands of electric bulbs tracing its archways, columns and exterior. In the gardens, trees were hung with 3,000 lanterns shaped like stars, with festoons of paper ribbons swinging beneath them.

Ottawa has offered an abatement of 17 points of individual income tax to the provinces if they will assume sole responsibility for three programs, hospital insurance, the Canada assistance plan and health grants.

There's Usually Good Reason For Doctor's Instructions

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a special diet for heart patients, and why are pills prescribed to thin the blood? I had a heart attack several months ago and when I left the hospital my doctor started me on such pills. He stressed that I return regularly to have blood tests.

Last week he was out of town so I got an appointment with another doctor. He didn't say anything about my blood being too thick, so I just stopped taking the pills. Am I right? — M. S. E.H.

There is no special diet for your problem except for two factors: If you are overweight, reducing is very important. In addition, a diet low in animal fats is sometimes prescribed. We do not know definitely whether this helps, but at least it does no harm. In general, a balanced diet which does not add weight is what you need.

Now as for blood thinning—If a clot lodges in some part of the coronary artery (the one which serves the heart muscle) the result is a heart attack.

DISCRETION
Obviously we want to take care that another clot does not form, so we frequently use drugs which reduce the clotting ability of the blood.

Your Good Health

But if we reduce the clotting ability, bleeding will not stop as quickly as usual. We prevent the formation of clots, but we slow down the healing of any wound.

Obviously anti-coagulants must be used with discretion so that small wounds, if they occur, will not bleed too much. That is why your doctor was so insistent about having regular checks. He wanted to make sure that the "clotability" of your blood remained high enough for safety.

SPECIAL TEST
A special test is necessary to determine this. An ordinary blood count will not show it. Therefore, when you went to another doctor, you should have told him about the pills you were taking, so he could make the proper tests.

You should not have stopped taking the pills without your doctor's knowledge and permission. However, I doubt very much that you have harmed yourself.

Heart attacks do not come because the blood is "too thick," but because a clot forms and lodges in the wrong place. Your medication is intended to make doubly sure that such a clot cannot occur while you are still recovering from your attack.

Dear Dr. Molner: Because of kidney stones, my doctor wants me to have some glands removed from my neck. Is there anything I can do to stop the calcium without surgery? If not, what guarantee have I that this will end my trouble? — M.S.

You probably have reference to the parathyroid glands in the neck which control calcium metabolism, and, if overactive, can be a factor in stone formation. Appropriate tests will show whether they are releasing too much calcium. As you know, that's too big an order. All I can say is that this type of operation usually helps.

Not to Mrs. N.T.: Yes, some women are overweight yet menstruate normally, but it is also true that for some, overweight is the governing cause of menstrual troubles.

Bishop Escapes Trial for Heresy

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Bishop James A. Pike of California was rebuked Tuesday by a committee of the Protestant Episcopal (Anglican) Church house of bishops, but apparently was saved from a heresy trial.

The ad hoc committee appointed to study the possibility of a heresy trial against Bishop Pike, said it was "deeply concerned with the irresponsibility revealed in many of his (Pike's) utterances."

The committee recommended, however, against a heresy trial because of the harm it might do to the church and because "the church has more important things to get on with."

The committee also said the language of faith "frequently is open to unimagined and liberalistic interpretation . . . There is constant need for re-interpretation and recasting, especially in a time of such rapid intellectual and social change as ours."

But the committee said the reinterpretation and recasting calls for "sensitive, pastoral care and for patience and reverent penetration." The committee said Bishop Pike has "too little of this pastoral concern and of this patient and reverent penetration."

LAUNCHED CHARGES

One of the members of the committee is Rt. Rev. Henry L. Lottitt, bishop of South Florida, who initiated accusations of heresy against Bishop Pike.

Bishop Lottitt has accused Bishop Pike of espousing heretical views, primarily aimed at his published statements on the virgin birth and the trinity.

Project Costs Spur Moves To Aid Province

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal MP for Vancouver-Burrard, said Premier Bennett Tuesday urged Premier Bennett to put his cards on the table so that other provincial political parties can help solve B.C. Hydro financing problems.

He urged the premier to meet with himself and New Democratic leader Robert Strachan to outline and study problems facing the government's huge Peace and Columbia power projects.

He said full multi-party cooperation is needed "because the whole future of B.C. lies in the successful development of the Peace and Columbia rivers."

LOW FIGURE

Mr. Strachan said Premier Bennett's disclosure Monday that the projects would exceed cost estimates by $100,000,000 is probably a low figure.

"I fully expect extra costs will be much higher — between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000," Mr. Strachan said. "Premier Bennett is not telling us the whole story."

War Aftermath

More Germans Put to Death?

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says there is a report circulating in Ottawa that as many as 12 German servicemen may have been executed with Canadian knowledge after the VE-Day armistice.

The newspaper adds in an Ottawa dispatch:

Survivor May Give Death Clue

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Two teen-aged daughters of a murdered state education official were unable to provide a single clue to the killer who shot their parents and 12-year-old sister in cold blood three days ago, Sheriff W. P. Joyce said Tuesday.

But for the first time, Joyce said he was slightly encouraged that Mrs. Helen Sims, who survived the attack though critically wounded, might recover and shed some light on the tragedy.

She has not been conscious since Saturday night when the assailant entered the modest Sims home, tied, gagged and blindfolded her, her robust 42-year-old husband, Robert W. Sims, and their daughter Joy Lynn, and fatally shot Sims and the child.

Viet Nam War

Battle Blazes In Quiet District

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting broke out Tuesday in a long-quiet coastal region 110 miles northeast of Saigon and U.S. air cavalrymen reported routing a Viet Cong company with air support.

After a two-hour battle, a U.S. spokesman said today, the Viet Cong force fled and left behind 48 dead.

Far to the north, U.S. Marines reported finding bodies of 95 Communist soldiers 16 miles northwest of Da Nang. That area was the scene of a recent operation by South Vietnamese troops, a spokesman said.

In the Mekong Delta, 56 miles southwest of Saigon, a large South Vietnamese force overran a cave prison camp and freed 18 captives they found handcuffed and ill-fed. The prisoners comprised 13 South Vietnamese soldiers and five women, including a Roman Catholic nun. The nun said she had been a prisoner 10 months.

Two new helicopter losses brought to 218 the number the U.S. has lost in Viet Nam. Losses of other U.S. planes rose to 540 Tuesday with the disclosure of two not previously announced.

Unionist Sentences Upheld

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court Tuesday upheld the convictions and sentences of 26 men for contempt of court in demonstrating at the strike-bound plant of Titeo Plastics Ltd. at Peterborough last February.

A five-man panel of the court headed by Chief Justice Dana Porter unanimously turned down appeals launched on behalf of the men, who had received jail sentences of 15 days and two months for violating a picket-limiting injunction.

After Tuesday's verdict was delivered, E. B. Joffe, counsel for 24 of the men, said an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada will be considered.

Reluctant Relief

THERE IS AN understandable impatience on the part of those immediately affected that the government at Ottawa has not seen fit to introduce the long-promised legislation increasing old age security pensions. The general public, too, is becoming more and more concerned with the unexplained delay.

This critical attitude is reflected in a certain restiveness evident in the House of Commons while the debate on second reading of the government's controversial medical care insurance bill drags on through seven days.

There seems little excuse for prolonging discussion of medicare at this stage—second reading means no more than a vote on the principle of the bill—which, after all, will not become operative before July, of 1968, if then.

The old age security measure, on the other hand, is a matter of immediate concern. At this point the needy pensioners do not know what relief they can anticipate or when it will be forthcoming.

On October 19 Mr. Erik A. Winkler, a Conservative from Hanover, Ont., asked in the Commons "when can we anticipate the introduction of legislation" in regard to these pensions. And he got the reply from Mr. G. J. McRae, minister of public works, that the matter would be introduced "as soon as we can finish the business that is now before the House (the medicare bill) and the urgent items on the order paper."

What is more urgent than the pensions decision? It might reasonably be asked.

Well, the House got an answer of a sort on Monday when, with an end of the debate on medicare in sight, Mr. L. T. Pennell, the solicitor-general, said it might not be possible to conclude it because the minister of health and welfare, Mr. A. J. MacEachen was expected to be out of town. And in that case the Commons would debate changes in the Housing Act.

No doubt these matters, too, are important to the nation; but it is questionable if they are as urgent as the old age pensions issue.

Mr. Stanley Knowles, the National Democrat from Winnipeg, is reported to have suggested there is no reason why the government could not disclose some details of the proposed increase in pensions by placing the legislation on the order paper.

Why not, indeed?

It would relieve the minds of thousands of elderly persons dependent on the pension across this land. They are surely entitled to know what relief they can expect at the earliest possible opportunity and when.

The government's reluctance to clarify the situation and get on with the legislation and its implementation show a singular lack of consideration for the very vital interests of the many involved.

Niche of Fame

IT IS ENTIRELY appropriate that the local centennial society should centre its attention this week on the person and artistry of Emily Carr. Few individuals are highlighted in the varied programs being staged as centennial events, but the focus on this gifted figure is well warranted.

Emily Carr was an authentic native genius of whom this city and province can be proud, a woman of outstanding achievement whose creative contributions are now widely acknowledged, both as a writer and as a painter. In the latter sphere especially she is listed among the leading artists of her country, a status that has grown increasingly since her death and her canvases became universally sought after across the nation and beyond.

As with many an artist before her major recognition has been posthumous, so that she is now established as an artist of distinctive rank and quality. That alone, and the memory of her individuality and unusual personality, which still lingers among those who knew her intimately, makes this week's tribute to her a notable event in centennial celebrations.

The flavor of this Victoria artist will be revealed in the fine biographical play being presented at the McPherson Playhouse tonight, the premiere of a production to run during the rest of the week. Many of Miss Carr's paintings, the visible evidence of her genius, are on view at the Art Gallery, and among other features of the tributes being staged in her memory is the flood-lighting of the home on Government Street where she was born.

This remembrance of a gifted woman who has enriched the artistic life of the country, and in so doing brought honor to her native city, is amply worthwhile. Emily Carr is ensconced in a niche of national fame, and she has a distinguished place in the centenary we currently celebrate.

Silent Partners

OBSERVERS OF THE Far East scene may wonder at the absence of Great Britain and Japan from the conference table at Manila.

Britain has used the fact of her co-chairmanship of the Geneva Conference for the settlement of the old troubles in Viet Nam to excuse her from active participation in the present confrontation—although this status has in no way inhibited Russia, the other co-chairman of the conference.

But it would have seemed logical for Britain to have been represented at Manila in view of her unavoidable responsibilities in Malaysia and a rather lesser involvement in Thailand.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

I have a record at home of a Welsh choral group, miners all, and the picture on the album sleeve depicts some of their number emerging from the gloom of a deep-seamed coal pit.

One or two are mere boys. There is the wonder of light in their eyes as darkness recedes temporarily as it gives way to the brightness of day. And a haunting, poignant quality in their faces, the characteristic that echoes through every one of their songs.

It has been said that the Celt is steeped in lament, as well he might be in view of his history. True it is at least that his poetry and music when voiced in his native tongue are cloud-shadowed and full of sorrow.

Tragedy has so often marked the paths of his race.

I thought of these miners and the gift of song which, by some disposition perhaps has been a saving grace of a lot stern and hard, when I read of the heart-rending story of the school and other buildings engulfed last Friday by an avalanche of coal waste. There must be few who were not moved to tears by the dreadful disaster that overtook the little Welsh village of Aberfan.

It made one ache in every fibre to think of a generation of small children so sadly wiped out of existence.

And the reports of those heroic teachers found clutching young boys and girls in their arms in a valiant but, alas, vain effort to save them from destruction, wrung the core of one's very being.

The lit of the Cymric voice when raised in song will be filled with greater sadness than ever.

How doleful is the tale of the mining valleys of Wales. Distress and depression has too frequently been a hallmark of those who spend their working days underground, wrestling from the earth the coal that has been Britain's main natural resource.

But never before has calamity struck with such unfeeling and deadly impact on the life of a mining village. Everyone here will respond with deep sympathy and be allied to the Welsh people in our midst who have been consumed with grief and anxiety.

And, the bitterness of it, because of a happening that might have been avoided had these slag heaps long since been levelled or piled high far from danger to those families who mined the pits which produced this coal waste.

In my own native land these slag heaps are known as blings, and they dot the countryside with unsightly look. Nature is doing its best where mining has ceased to cover many of them with verdure so that in time they may even appear as attractive hills. None that I ever saw was piled on a slope and seemed of potential menace, although there may be some such.

But in the valley in which Aberfan rests, apparently, this danger has always been present.

Now it is, a supreme irony, that an investigation will be held into the disaster and also to the security of people nearby all others of these unsightly mounds of mining residue.

"How Green Was My Valley." What a painful theme this now is for the stricken people of Aberfan.

Diary for the Wealthy Offers Tips For Those Who Want to Throw It Away

By CASSANDRA from London

ONE of the sure signs of great wealth, we are told, is that really rich people never carry the stuff with them.

I would like to observe, at this point, that really poor people don't either.

But it is a fact that Rockefeller travelled around penniless—except for a few cents that he ceremoniously gave away in order to spread the carpet of unhappiness.

Royalty are said never to handle the coin of their realm, and the real sons of Croesus, like Jolly, laughing Paul Getty, are hard put to it to lay hands on the circular metal mazzima or the folding crinkly.

The late Lucius Beebe was an expert on great wealth and his claims to be an authority on the subject were that he owned a St. Bernard dog, whom he called T-bone Towser, that he fed entirely on steaks and who featured profitably in his master's will, that he possessed a private railway dining car that used to take him and his entourage all over the United States; that he was the proprietor of several Rolls-Royces and an uncertain number of oil wells that he never bothered to count.

Beebe once told me that Gene Fowler, the great American journalist and playwright, and Michael Arlen, the author, both had the right philosophy towards money.

"Money," said Fowler, "is something to be thrown off trains."

"Money," said Arlen, "gives you a new dimension. All I want of the world is very little. I only want the best of everything and there is so little of it."

The plight of our millionaires is a grievous one and nobody in the Welfare State takes the slightest notice of them except to try to confiscate every penny they have got.

Now Mr. Peter Wolfe, the publisher who is bravely prepared to bear the burden of intolerable wealth himself, has produced a diary for millionaires — and has kindly presented me with a copy — which he is publishing "at a truly millionaire's price, seven guineas."

I have never seen anything like it. It is superbly printed, bound in soft leather, weighs five pounds two ounces, measures 11 inches by 9 inches and has 500 elegant pages.

Mr. Wolfe tells me that he has already sold 5,000 copies of the States, where dollar millionaires are two a penny — so to speak.

He is confident that the Ciores, the Astors, the Ellermuffs, the Gulbenkinds, the Wolfson, the Beardsels, and the other headline cases will queue up for their copies in this country.

The decorative border to each sumptuous page shows that Mr. Wolfe has caught the piteous plight of the average millionaire. It consists of a frieze of wine glasses, people skiing, dancing, necking in clandestine circumstances and oil wells labelled "His" and "Hers."

He offers essential workaday information for the loot-and-bolypop men such as the fact that there is no limit to the number of hours you can shoot in Istanbul in January; that the best people to arrange a parachute jump in New York City are "Portis of Call" and that if you want to spend 15,000 pesetas on a guitar, Jose Ramirez is your man.

No millionaire can afford not to know that Alwyn Cooper of Nagpur can fix you up a tiger hunt with elephants in the Himalayan foothills for about £640 for fifteen days; that the admission fee to the Rome Golf Club is 300,000 lire; that you can't just barge into the Royal Yacht Squadron for it took Sir Thomas Lipton fifty years to become a member; and that if you want a bodyguard in New York to help you hold on to your millions ring JU-6-1320 at 304 West 58th Street.

The names of the head barman, the smoothest hotels in the world are supplied so that if you feel chummy you can mate with Tony at the Connaught in London; Captain-of-the-Bar Bert at the St. Regis in New York; Silvio at the Eden in Rome; Najeeb at the Phoenix in Beirut; Charly with no "e" at the Bristol-Kempinski in Berlin; Claude at the Chess Grischuna in Klosters; Giuseppe at the Gritti in Venice, and Pepe at the Ritz in Tangier.

For $500 Kenneth the beautician — if that is the horrible word — will leave his establishment on East 54th Street in New York and will visit privileged clients in their own homes.

The Other China

Taiwan (Formosa) Secure

By OTTO VON HAPSBURG from Taipei

ON Oct. 31, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, President of the Republic of China, will celebrate his eightieth birthday. For a man of his age, the leader of the Free Chinese is remarkably fit. His mind is as brilliant as it was 20 years ago, his information on world affairs is up-to-date, his reactions are lively. He continues to work as usual. His voice and his walk are that of a well-preserved man of 60.

Nevertheless, an anniversary such as the one approaching inevitably brings the question of succession to the forefront. Hence the wide-spread speculations all over the world. Many people believe that the Kuomintang will disappear together with its present chief. There is also talk of rivalry between outstanding persons of the regime. All this has led to Chiang's enemies, who are no longer able to deny the great achievements of the Republic of China, to insinuate that this country cannot be trusted because its continuity is not assured.

Reality, here in Taiwan, is quite different. Few people discuss seriously the "problem of succession." This is because the constitutional bodies are so firmly established that they assure the stability of the regime. If the chief of state is no longer able to carry out his duty, the vice-president would automatically take his place until the Legislative Yuan elects a successor. This parliament, contrary to what an interested propaganda pretends, is certainly not a rubber-stamp outfit. When one has had the opportunity to observe its debates one knows that the deputies, in their overwhelming majority, take their task very seriously. The government has not always an easy ride.

To this solidarity of the institutions comes the human element. The Republic of China is not tied to a single person, as are so many new states. One now can talk of collective leadership, of a government team. The Chinese elite has a broad base. Each member of the cabinet has at his side two or three others who are fit to replace him if needed. Thus, for instance, the newly elected vice-president of the republic, Mr. C. K. Yen, is a most remarkable figure. He is not only a first-rate economist, one of the fathers of the Taiwan "economic miracle," but also a man of outstanding political ability.

If the inner stability of the regime seems assured, one should nevertheless not underestimate what Chiang Kai-shek represents, especially in the eyes of the mainland Chinese. His name is widely known. The Communists, by continuously hurling insults at him, have made enviable propaganda in his favor. They build him up as an alternative to their rule. This is bound to arouse the curiosity, often the sympathy, of a young generation of Chinese born after the debacle of the Kuomintang, who have consequently not known him personally. A European technician who worked in China recently reported that his men, once they trusted him, had come to see him secretly to ask him about the Generalissimo.

This is an important asset which might get lost if one day President Chiang should be replaced in the leadership of his country.

Despite all the advice of self-styled experts and prophets, whose main distinction is to be invariably wrong, the Republic of China on Taiwan seems assured of a long life. In the light of what happens on the mainland it may well be that the Kuomintang will witness, in perfectly good health, the end of Mao Tse-tung.

Disintegration Threat

Massacres in Nigeria May Doom Federal Plan

By COLIN LEGUM from Lagos

— into isolation. Three successive massacres of Ibos in the North which set off a migration back to their homeland have produced a sense of persecution, martyrdom and defiance among the highly intelligent, ambitious and energetic Ibos.

The crucial question now is whether in its present mood the Ibo leadership will agree to name its share of civilian members to the new advisory council. If they do, then an important hurdle will have been overcome in avoiding the dangerous drift of the African giant towards disintegration.

While every effort will be made to persuade the Ibo leadership of the Eastern region to co-operate, there are strong doubts whether they will do so as things stand.

The Ibo's new young leader, Colonel Odumegwu Ojukwu, claims that there is no security for himself or his advisers in the federal capital of Nigeria at Lagos. He wants all troops to be withdrawn from Lagos as a first step. The supreme military council has made a move towards removing friction by ordering the withdrawal of troops along the troubled frontier between the East and North regions but it shows no sign of being ready to demilitarize Lagos itself.

If the Ibos stay behind their own lines and refuse to co-operate with the present military setup — as seems only too likely to happen — the situation is bound to go on deteriorating. One possible way out of the dilemma is to get agreement to that the leaders of the four regions and supreme military council can meet somewhere outside of Nigeria. For the moment this seems the most hopeful way of hammering out some interim solution for the country.

But the supreme council understandably does not want to do anything that might be represented as an admission of the Ibo claim that their leaders are not safe in Lagos which the council vehemently denies. The country's future waits on the answer of Colonel Ojukwu.

Every Day 180,000 More Born

By LOUIS E. FLEMING
From United Nations

More evidence that the population growth of the world is out of control has been piled on delegates' desks here, dramatized by the fact that the net growth of the world's population is currently 180,000 a day.

But it is not yet clear what the delegates will be able to do about this fund of information.

The general assembly's debate on population is not scheduled until around Nov. 21.

If, by then, Pope Paul VI has issued his long-awaited clarification of the Vatican's policy on birth control, the way would be cleared for a strong resolution on technical assistance in the birth control area. Otherwise, it is touch and go whether the sponsors will be able to overcome traditional resistance and take a sharper stand.

With or without a resolution, however, Secretary General U Thant is prepared to give countries all the help they want, even to do a repeat on the controversial birth control study in India of 1965. So far there has not been a great deal of demand.

In the last few days, UN officials have let it be known that:

● The latest tally of the world population puts the total at 3,285,000,000, an increase of 65,000,000 over the previous year.

● It now appears that the population will double in the next 40 years and that by the year 2,000 the population will be 6,130,000,000, which is 160,000,000 higher than the experts were predicting just two years ago.

● Famine is almost certain over the next 24 to 28 years unless there is a miraculous increase in food production and a significant leveling in the population rate of growth.

The most formidable marshalling of statistics is in the new U.N. demographic yearbook which, along with the usual facts and figures, comes up this year with an astonishing discovery of high fertility belts across Africa, Latin America and Asia. Exceedingly high birth rates were discovered in a geographic section running from Guinea and Mali on the west coast of Africa, across the Sahara through Chad to Sudan. The birth rates in these areas ranged from 46 to 62 per 1,000 population.

Another fertility belt appears in Latin America, particularly in Central America, although all of Latin America north of Chile, Argentina and Uruguay has high rates averaging more than 40 per 1,000. In Asia, there are high rates in a belt stretching from the Middle East to Indonesia and the Philippines, with India and Syria the only countries in the belt reporting a fertility rate under 40 per 1,000.

There is a conspicuous contrast between these high birth rate areas and eastern Europe, which has the lowest birth rate in the world. Hungary has the lowest of all, 13.1 per 1,000, and the Soviet Union has the highest in that region, 18.5. But even the Soviet figure is below the European average of 19.

The yearbook also studied for the first time the gross fertility ratio, which is a measure of the average number of children born alive per woman in a given country.

According to the study, the potential of a woman is 12 children in her lifetime.

In Jordan, the average is seven, and the rate is six per woman in Albania, Dahomey, Kenya, Panama, Thailand, Togo and western Samoa.

Among the other countries, the average is four in Canada and Israel, three for each woman in the United States, Norway and the Netherlands, and two per woman in Switzerland.

The greatest life expectancy in the world is for a girl born in France, Norway or Sweden, who now can expect to live to 75. Life expectancy is less than 40 years in the central African republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Dahomey, Ghana, Guinea, Togo and Upper Volta.

Dr. B. R. Sen, director general of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, gave new warnings last week on the food crisis.

Among other things, he noted that:

● Half of the world's population presently is "underfed or badly fed or both."

● At least 3,000,000 people die each year from protein malnutrition.

● Starvation is seldom recorded as the cause of death but many deaths ascribed to dysentery, parasitic conditions and infectious diseases of all kinds take place because the sufferers have been weakened by lack of food and especially by the lack of the right kinds of food."

● The problem of adequate food supply is becoming more difficult because, in the developing countries where the need is greatest, the age structure is creating an enormous fertility potential. Those under 15 now comprise up to 45 per cent of the population in these areas.

Does Viet Cong Stay?

'Summit' Offer Ignores Details

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
From Manila

American officials said Tuesday night that South Viet Nam alone can handle the problem of suppressing Viet Cong rebel forces if North Vietnamese troops are withdrawn and the rebels are denied further supplies and reinforcements from the north.

That also was the line taken by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Viet Nam in a report he made to the seven-country anti-Communist summit conference here Monday.

The U.S. and Ky views indicate the conditions laid down in the final conference communique Tuesday for withdrawal of foreign forces from South Viet Nam stop short of a demand for removal to the north of all the Viet Cong as well as North Vietnamese troops.

The summit manoeuvre implied in this is in part an attempt to separate the civil war in the south from the war, involving northern forces, between South and North Viet Nam.

It is also an effort to deal with repeated Communist demands for U.S. troop withdrawal as a condition of peace-making, and to meet charges, from non-Communist countries, that having put 330,000 troops into Viet Nam on the perimeter of Chinese Communist power the United States has no intention of taking them out.

President Johnson has tried to deal with this issue before by promising withdrawal and declaring the great U.S. bases built in the last two years would be turned over to South Viet Nam for civilian reconstruction. The new element in Tuesday's communique is the promise to withdraw within six months if the specified conditions are met.

What is missing in all this as constituting a new move toward peace, is any evidence whatever that either the Viet Cong or North Viet Nam are or will be interested.

Nevertheless the flat six-month commitment may have appeal among non-Communist countries interested in ending the escalation dangers of the Southeast Asian conflict. That could produce increased pressures on North Viet Nam at least to enter into some kind of peace discussions or to scale down the war.

The possibility of the Viet Cong participating in negotiations is not mentioned in the communique, although that is considered by many neutrals to be a critical question.

The policy statement on withdrawal said South Viet Nam would ask for removal of allied forces "as the military and subversive forces of North Viet Nam are withdrawn, infiltration ceases, and the level of violence thus subsides."

To this the South Vietnamese government's allies responded, the communique said, that they would withdraw their forces within six months "as the other side withdraws its forces to the north, ceases infiltration, and the level of violence subsides."

Neither of these passages in the communique offered any explanation of what is meant by "subversive forces."

What the anti-Communist allies now have apparently demanded is that all the northern troops, whether serving as Viet Cong hard core or in regular North Vietnamese battalions, must be withdrawn as a condition for withdrawal of the forces of the South Vietnamese government's allies. That would appear to cover both regular military units from the north and "subversive forces."

What Did They Know About Kennedy's Death?

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters)—Ramparts magazine says at least 10 persons connected with the assassination of President Kennedy have since met violent or unusual deaths.

Formerly a Roman Catholic hymn's publication but now peculiar-oriented Ramparts has this to say about the 10:

Jim Koethe:
The young Dallas reporter had been writing a book on the assassination. His body was found wrapped in a blanket in his apartment Sept. 21. Police said cause of death was asphyxiation from a broken bone at the base of the neck. "Apparently the result of a karate chop." The book notes were missing.

"Within a week a 22-year-old ex-con named Larry Earl Reno, was picked up selling Koethe's personal effects and held on suspicion of murder. However, Reno was never indicted for murder, but sentenced to life imprisonment for robbing a hotel.

Bill Hunter:

A police reporter "with a knack for getting along with cops," he covered the Kennedy assassination.

Hunter was "accidentally" shot by a policeman April 23, 1964, only a few hours after a witness testified before the Warren commission about a meeting in Jack Ruby's apartment attended by Hunter and Koethe. Detective Creighton Wiggins said he had "been playing cops and robbers when his gun started to slip from his fingers and it went off." Wiggins was given a suspended sentence for involuntary manslaughter.

Tom Howard:

He was Ruby's leading lawyer who arrived at the police station a short time after the night-club owner shot Lee Harvey Oswald, whom the Warren commission concluded killed Kennedy. Howard died of a heart attack "not verified by an autopsy" March 27, 1965.

Kilgallen

Earlene Roberts:
She ran the residence where Ruby lived and, say friends, "was worried to death by police" up to the time of her death from another unverified heart attack.

Nancy Jane Mooney:

She was a stripper at Ruby's club who provided an alibi for Darrell Wayne Garner, accused assailant of Warren Reynolds, a witness to the flight of the suspected killer of Patrolman Jefferson Davis Tippit. (The Warren commission assumed Oswald to be Tippit's killer). She "changed herself with her torso-dancer pants in her private cell at Dallas County jail."

Hank Killam:

His wife was a cigarette girl at Ruby's club. He "took a deep, unexplained interest in the assassination" and was "bounced to death" by FBI men. He was found dead in Florida, where he had moved, with his throat cut.

William Whaley:

He took Oswald from the scene of the assassination in his taxi. He was killed in a car crash, but when a reporter tried to interview his boss, he was thrown out of the office and told: "If you're smart you won't be coming round here asking questions."

Dorothy Kilgallen:

A post-mortem said the famous columnist died of acute barbiturate and alcohol poisoning. She was the only reporter allowed a private interview with Ruby, and told friends a few days before her death: "I'm going to bust this case wide open."

Lee Bowers:

Also killed in a car crash, he was a witness to the assassination and testified about the suspicious behavior of two men at the scene.

A doctor who examined him before his death said he was "in a strange state of shock, a different kind of shock than an accident victim experiences — I cannot explain it — I've never in the back, he was mistaken for his brother."

Edward Benavides:

His brother was a witness to the Tippit killing. The suggestion is that there was a strong possibility that, as he was shot

Ramparts also quotes witnesses as saying Ruby and Oswald knew each other, and that Ruby had gangland connections.

Three-Year Term For Barn Arsonist

A 38-year-old man was sentenced Tuesday to three years in the penitentiary for deliberately setting fire to a barn at Wilkinson Road prison Oct. 12, causing more than $50,000 damage.

Lorne Patrick Mitchell, 38, Courtney, was sentenced in central magistrate's court after Magistrate William Ostler had considered pre-sentence and psychiatric reports.

Mitchell pleaded guilty to arson Oct. 12.

BAD RECORD
Magistrate Ostler said Mitchell had a "very bad record" and said he was satisfied that Mitchell's difficulties stemmed largely from the fact he was an alcoholic.

"When an alcoholic or any other person becomes a menace to society, then, of course, society must come first," Magistrate Ostler said.

The magistrate said the reports showed Mitchell needed psychiatric care and might require a period in hospital.

Mitchell's criminal record was not detailed in court.

ENTERED BARN
Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart told the court at an earlier hearing that Mitchell had taken a taxi to North Road Oct. 11 after a drinking spell.

He entered the prison barn on Roy Road and set fire to some hay with a roll of toilet paper he was carrying with him.

Lost in the blaze were 44 pedigree piglets, four sows, 160 tons of hay and assorted feed.

Mitchell told police he had a grudge against the prison.

Robert McRae of Vancouver was sentenced to three months in jail with an indefinite term of six months for assaulting Constable Patrick Braiden.

McRae was found guilty last week. Court was told then that McRae pulled a lawn mower from the front of a house on Government Oct. 11 when Constable Braiden approached him.

A chase ensued, ending with McRae and Constable Braiden tussling in the backyard of a house.

CONCURRENT TERMS
McRae pleaded guilty then to two charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, two charges of being a minor without insurance and one of careless driving.

He received jail sentences for the traffic offences and they will run concurrently with the three-month term. His licence was suspended for 18 months.

A black dog leaped over a five-foot fence in front of 633 Admirals Aug. 23 and bit an Esquimalt policeman on the right forearm.

Selena Davies, 633 Admirals, pleaded guilty to harboring a vicious dog and was fined $15.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the policeman was on his way to serve a notice on a person living at that address.

Fixed on the gate at the house was sign, "Beware of the dog. Do not enter."

Mrs. Davies said the dog was not vicious, and that the neighborhood children played with it.

David Byard, address unavailable, was committed for trial on a charge of indecently assaulting a 17-year-old girl.

The girl said she met Byard Oct. 4 and later that night they visited a nearby house. Byard walked her home and when they were about five houses from her James Bay home, Byard picked her up and carried her to a back yard.

"He pushed me down on the ground and tried to take off my underpants," she said.

'ARM OVER THROAT'
She tried to get away but she couldn't. Byard had his arm over her throat, she said.

"I heard a noise in the back of the house and told Dave," she said. "He rolled over and I jumped up."

She ran to the street and toward her house but Byard grabbed her neck, she said.

NOT DRINKING
Just then a police car driven by Constable Blake Green arrived.

To defence counsel R. B. Hutchison, she denied she had been to Beacon Hill Park with Byard.

She said she had not been drinking and had not been necking with Byard.

Constable Green described her condition as "anger and frustration."

He told Mr. Hutchison that he had examined the back yard of the house and found no signs of a struggle in the dew.

ASKED ABOUT SIPHON
Leggatt told police he had run our of gas. Asked about the presence of a siphon in his car, he said he intended to steal some gas that night.

Magistrate Ostler asked him: "You could not afford to run it, but could not bear to walk, is that it?"

Leggatt agreed.

The move was agreed upon at a commission meeting Monday night.

Facilities of the centre had earlier been suggested as adequate to meet the demand.

"The centre can only hold about 50 people and we have approximately 1,000 potential members of Silver Threads in the north peninsula," said Chairman A. W. Freeman.

The chairman said a meeting tonight with Victoria Silver Threads has been arranged to discuss the proposal.

Carr Home Illuminated

Emily Carr week in Victoria is being marked by exhibitions of her work at Art Gallery of Greater Victoria and in foyer of McPherson Playhouse, floodlighting of her birthplace at 207 Government Street and presentation of play by Toronto playwright Herman Voaden in McPherson Playhouse, starting at 8:30 p.m. today and running until Saturday.—(Ian McKain)

Active Role Proposed

A United Church woman Monday said women in her church should take a more active role in policy making and social service work.

Miss Beatrice Wilson of Toronto, associate secretary of the national board of women of the church, was in Victoria for a one-day conference of women in First United Church.

Miss Wilson also advocated halfway houses for women recovering from alcoholism.

The United Church has such houses for men in Ontario and Alberta.

"They have proved their usefulness," she said.

Miss Wilson is on a national speaking tour.

Pearson Tosses Out Bone But Sharp Drags It Back

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government promised a minor concession to the provinces Tuesday in its new program for aid to education.

Christmas Rates For Cards

Christmas cards, when unsealed and mailed in Canada to destinations in Canada, the U.S. (including its territories and possessions), the West Indies, Spain, North, Central and South America, require three cents in stamps for the first two ounces and one cent for each additional two ounces, the post office announced as a reminder Monday.

The rate on unsealed items of third class matter, including Christmas cards, mailed in Canada to Great Britain and places in the Commonwealth, the Republic of Ireland, France and all other countries not mentioned above, is four cents for the first two ounces and two cents for each additional two ounces thereafter.

Tired, Hungry

Rescued Pair Flown To Norman Wells

NORMAN WELLS, N.W.T. (CP)—A helicopter returned a downed airman and his passenger here Tuesday afternoon and returned immediately for two para-rescue jumpers who assisted the flyers since Monday.

The men — Robert McGonigal, 35, of Burnaby, and Karl Gartnerich, about 50, of Dornbirn, Austria — had been sought since they disappeared on a 100-mile flight Oct. 14. Their plane was finally sighted upside down in a deep gully Monday morning.

BOTH HUNGRY

The rescue team, consisting of Sgt. Roy Farmer and Cpt. Jim Radcliffe, both of Winnipeg, parachuted to the downed pair and reported back that both were well, but hungry, after their ten-day ordeal.

There was no indication given in the radio reports as to what caused their plane to go down in the remote area near Norman Wells, some 900 miles northwest of Edmonton.

McGonigal and Gartnerich, both apparently in good health, were taken to Norman Wells hospital for a checkup. They were to be questioned later by RCMP and RCAF officials.

'Economic Idiots' Running B.C.

New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan charged Tuesday that "economic idiots" running the government of British Columbia have plunged this province into its third recession in little more than a decade.

He said the Social Credit government gained re-election to office "under false pretenses" last month because Premier Bennett knew through-out the campaign he did not have enough money to carry out his two-year power development program, and that now he is trying to shift the blame to Ottawa.

Mr. Strachan predicted that between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 more than originally anticipated will have to be spent on the Peace and Columbia River projects.

PREMIER AWAY

The provincial NDP leader unleashed his broadside during a press conference, here, while Premier Bennett was still in Ottawa stating his case for a higher return of tax money to British Columbia.

"I'm not proud of the fact

that the premier of British Columbia, after all he's been saying over the years, had to go whining like a crybaby, pleading with Ottawa to get him out of the financial jam which he himself created through incompetence, arrogance and blundering," said Mr. Strachan.

SAME BLUNDERS

"We have been governed by economic idiots in the province of British Columbia for 14 years. There are times in the last 14 years when we made the same economic blunders—over-expansion, stretching of our capital resources, boom followed by layoffs, cutbacks, recession and increases in social welfare."

These recessions took place in 1956-57, 1961-62 and now, Mr. Strachan said.

He said the province is in a recession "when you start laying off men, when you start pleading with Ottawa for more money, when you start curtailing school expansion."

MORE THAN FOUR

"Yes, once you start laying off men and doing what we're doing, you're in a recession. As a matter of fact, our unemployment is more than that of the Atlantic provinces, a little more than four per cent."

The reason Premier Bennett has not received federal assistance on the Peace and Columbia River projects while other provinces are getting millions from Ottawa, said the NDP leader, is "he simply refused the terms on which the other provinces received theirs."

YOU CAN'T COMPLAIN

"I mean, he wants to run the federal government as well as this one. But you can't complain if you won't meet their terms," Mr. Strachan said he feels that B.C. is not getting equal treatment from Ottawa, but that it is getting fair treatment from the federal government.

RIGHT SYSTEM

Life said he believes in the system of equalization grants to the poorer provinces, and that British Columbia is wealthy because of its natural resources and not because of the policies of its present government.

On the Peace and Columbia River projects, Mr. Strachan said Premier Bennett has "known all along the money he received from the United States won't do what he said it would do, and he is now using the federal sales tax to direct attention away from his own deception and blundering."

'HE KNEW'

"He knew about the 11 per cent sales tax when he signed that agreement on the Columbia, and his brief to Ottawa again points up the fact his government is in office under false pretenses."

Mr. Strachan said the records show that B.C.'s boom periods and recessions are always greater than those of other provinces, and that the government should have tried to stabilize the economy by restricting construction of pulp mills over a longer period of time, to even the flow of capital investment.

Wing Flag Dedication Tonight

A consecration ceremony will be held at 800 (Pacific) Wing, RCAF Association, at 8 p.m. today when Rev. O. L. Foster dedicates the wing's flag and standard.

Following the ceremony in the quarters at Wilson Street, Group Capt. D. B. Wurtele, commander of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, will present the flag and standard to Clarence House, president of the wing and immediate past president William Stevenson.

Later in the evening, Lieut. Dennis Ryan, assistant regional information officer at HMC Dockyard, will give a colored slide talk on the Centennial Military Tattoo, which will visit Victoria next spring.

Meet Modern Sweden Invitation to Canada

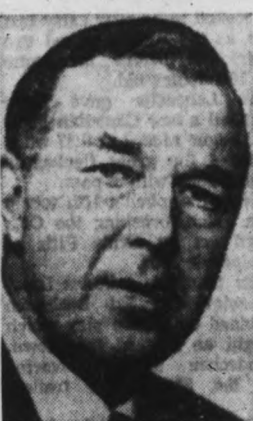

Prince Bertil, second in line to the Swedish throne, will head a 21-person Swedish trade and cultural mission which visits British Columbia next month.

He plans to meet the Vancouver Board of Trade and play golf when the mission, Meet Modern Sweden, visits Vancouver on Nov. 15, 20 and 21.

The mission will include several bank presidents, a prominent labor leader, manufacturers and trade experts and Mrs. Ingrid Arvidsson, cultural attaché at the Swedish embassy in Washington, D.C.

TRADE PRIMER

Its purpose is to bolster trade between Canada and Sweden. Sweden's Minister of Trade, Gunnar Lange, said in a statement released here Tuesday "it is important that we should get to know each other better and find out what we think, what we need and what we can offer each other."

Prince Bertil

"I hope and believe new opportunities for an increasing flow of ideas, know-how and goods between Sweden and Canada will be created through the personal contacts and discussions" which will be had during the forthcoming visit of the mission.

Sweden currently enjoys the benefit of having exports larger than imports in her dealings with Canada. Sweden exported $55,568,440 worth of goods to Canada in 1965, compared with only $28,980,145 worth of imports from this country during the same year.

FEDERAL MEETING

The trade mission will be in Canada from Nov. 14 to 25. Prince Bertil will visit parliament on Nov. 16, and have a series of meetings with federal government officials.

The prince will visit Montreal on Nov. 17 and 18, and after visiting Vancouver will be in Toronto from Nov. 22 to 26.

Subandrio

Helped Vain Coup

Sukarno Aide Facing Death

JAKARTA (AP)—Dr. Subandrio, once the second most powerful man in Indonesia, has been sentenced to death on a charge of helping an unsuccessful Communist party coup attempt last year.

The man who for nine years was Indonesia's foreign minister and the right-hand man of President Sukarno, listened impassively Tuesday as the special military tribunal read the verdict.

The sentence brought to an end the meteoric career of the slender, bespectacled former medical doctor.

KNOW OF COUP

While the court tried him also on charges of corruption, it concentrated in its verdict on the charges of treason and subversion.

The court held that Subandrio knew the coup was brewing and that Communist military divisions were training in Central Java, but did not report to Sukarno, who since March has been shown by the army of most of his powers.

Danger! Extra Can Of Gasoline

OTTAWA (CP)—It's dangerous to carry an extra can of gasoline in your car. It can cause an explosion.

In a test for the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, two safety experts placed a safety can of gasoline in the trunk of a car on a warm day. Leaving the engine running, they moved to a safe distance. In 20 minutes, the whole back of the car exploded.

It happened because in the warm trunk, vapor was forced out past the cap of the safety container. When explosive proportions were reached, some ignition source like a short in the tail-light circuit touched off the blast.

If you must carry gasoline, keep it in the car as short a time as possible. Use a container listed by a recognized testing authority. Put it in the back seat of the car, and keep the windows open so vapor can't build up.

Saanich Inquiry

Appointment Up to Council

The man who will probe real estate dealings of some Saanich municipal employees will be named by order-in-council, an official of the municipal affairs department said Tuesday.

Once the investigator has been appointed by cabinet order, he will be able to set the date for the hearings, said James Baird, assistant deputy minister and deputy inspector of municipalities. Saanich council this week formally asked the department of municipal affairs to hold a public hearing into the affairs of Royal Oak Estates Ltd., a company set up by some members of the municipality's assessment department.

Council said that although it didn't think any wrongdoing was intended, such action by municipal employees was ill-advised.

The terms of the probe, expected to begin in a week or two, will be set by the provincial government.

"THE BEST-DRESSED PEOPLE IN TOWN WEAR THE FAIR SHARE PIN"

WHAT IS THE FAIR SHARE PIN? A small, gold emblem, in the shape of a check mark, or a square blue pin embossed with the letters F/S. Both indicate that the wearer is proud of his community and wants to make it an even better place in which to live. He or she has demonstrated this pride through a Fair Share Pledge to the 1966 United Appeal.

WHAT IS A FAIR SHARE GIFT? Only the contributor can decide what his or her gift should be. However, to the many who ask for guidance the suggestion is made that a Fair Share Gift for employees is one day's pay a year, and for executives and professional men, one per cent of annual income.

There's Been Quite a Change in Women's Golf

Barbara Romack

You Can Now Tell the Players from Gardner Dickinson

By JIM MURRAY

LA COSTA, Calif. — Are you ready for the news story that says "the winner walked up to the final five-foot putt of the tournament, tapped it in, then dropped the club and burst into tears?"

What if you walked into the clubhouse with a microphone and said "where's the leading money-winner?" and an attendant pointed and said "the one over there knitting?"

Would you believe an Open champion walked onto the 18th green pregnant? How about a champion who picked up in the rain, not because the swing was bad or the game sour, but because the mascara was running? Pound-for-pound, the greatest group of golfers in the world today dye their hair, paint their fingernails, cry a lot, watch their weight and wear ear-rings.

Ladies' golf is a thing of the past. These women are so emancipated, they are at great pains to be over-feminine. When a lady golfer goes out at night, she never allows herself a tailored suit, or even one of those Paris creations that make every woman look like a protest singer or something that turns into a live bat at midnight. They run heavily to sequins and fringes.

Now, am not one who thinks woman's place is in the kitchen hardening fudge. But I'm not sure she should be five-under-par through 13, either. I tend not to like anybody who can break par — even from the front tees. My relationship to my own home-maker is excellent. I give her all the help around the house I can. I hand her the screwdriver, I hold the ladder on all roof repairs, and when the kitchen floods, I get out of the water level will remain constant while she fixes the leak.

But, like all mankind, I have often taken a dim view of ladies on the golf course. I guess this is because, historically, they tended to be leather-lunged broads — with faces to match who held up play on Thursday afternoons around the old home club, or stood around putting lipstick on while you were waiting to pitch through a green. Or they went home and said to your wife "Jim was still at the bar when I left the club."

I have never been sure women belong in a shot-put ring either. The idea of one throwing a javelin positively makes me shudder. A woman should never throw anything bigger than a rolling pin. In fact, I notice in Europe now, it's not enough to talk soprano and wear pearls. If you run the 100 in 10-flat, they look you in a room, and if your beard grows, you turn in your nail polish, and your mother gets to stop saying "my son, the lady hurdler." They are so suspicious, they held up one lady's medals until she proved herself by becoming a mother. But, if ladies' golf was once a game played by types who looked as if they had flipped the coin to decide between picking up a club or picking up a plow — between driving a ball or driving a truck — it's no longer true.

It's still the slum area of golf, money-wise. But the slum area of golf today is like the poorer section of Bel-Air. As the old punch-line goes "when it's bad — it's still pretty good." The girls are relegated to opens in fun towns like Las Cruces, New Mexico, and Waterloo, Iowa. They get to New York only on the way to Worcester and other lobster metropolises.

But their minimum purse is $10,000, their leading money winner is in the 90 per cent tax bracket. And, best of all, the field looks like a bust-out at a charm school. There are no more hair-do's like a U-boat commander's. There isn't a baritone in the lot.

"You'd rather miss a shot than miss the hairdresser," Barbara Romack, who looks like the lead in a French movie, explains.

The girls tootle from town to town in beige-gold Cadillacs with the back seat full of swaying cocktail dresses. They gave a baby shower for one of the troupe only the other day, and there hasn't been a cigar smoked on the tour since the stylists rule went out. The players today are not ex-tombos, they are ex-models, current coeds, and future housewives. They lose more numbers to marriage than they do to bogeys. They hit the ball straight. They know when they're entitled to a free drop.

But at night over candlelight they flutter their eyelids and pretend they can't pick up a handkerchief or light their own cigarettes. They are low-handicap mantras, looking for Mr. Right with two million bucks in the bank.

They come together with the lordly man's tour — which is $3,000,000 richer — only infrequently, as they did down here at the Haig mixed scotch foursome at La Costa Country Club but, when they do no one has to look any more and say "which one's Snead?" or "which one's Gardner Dickinson?" In fact, if they played in a bowl, you'd think a few of them were Brigitte Bardot.

Maple Leaf Defence Merits 'Best' Rating

Portland Buckaroos, averaging almost four goals a game, and Vancouver Canucks, with four more goals than Victoria Maple Leafs in the four games the two clubs have played, are doing the best defensively so far this Western Hockey League season. But when it comes to defence, no one is close to the Maple Leafs.

"This was New York" in the elegant 'eighties," Frank Graham wrote, "and these were the Giants, fashioned in elegance, playing on the Polo Grounds, then at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue. It was the New York of the brownstone house and the gaslit streets, of the top hat and the hansom cab, of oysters and champagne and perfect cigars, of Ada Rehan and Oscar Wilde and the young John L. Sullivan. It was also the New York of the Tenderloin and the Bowery, of the slums and the sweatshops, of goats grazing among the shanties perched on the rocky terrain of Harlem."

Some day before the memory grows too dim, somebody with Frank's gift for words — if such there be — ought to write, "This was Friday night in New York in the 1940s and '50s," and try to make readers understand what fight night at the Garden used to be like.

The early dinner crowds and the talk in Shor's and Gallagher's and Al Schacht's and 21... the feeling after dinner that all the traffic in Manhattan was moving toward Eighth Ave and 50th, sluggish and noisily impatient... the swirling throngs under the marquee that reads, "Madison Square Garden," and the cops not bothering to try to keep the sidewalk open... the sharp, cheap mob in the lobby, and at ringside the Broadway guys with their varnished blondes (until television came in with the cameras looking down from the 50th St. balcony, whereupon the guys with the dolls swapped their seats on the 49th St. side for locations out of range of a picture going into the home).

The buffs from the Bronx and Brooklyn and Harlem in the galleries... the thunder they made, and the tobacco smoke in clouds under the ring lights... afterward, in Leone's or back at Shor's the arguments, the laughter, the crackling electricity in the air.

The Princely Division

The big guys like Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano packed them in, of course, as the big guys always do. There was a time when lightweight like Beau Jack and Bob Montgomery wouldn't take their pants off with less than $100,000 in the house. But best of all were the middleweights.

Big enough to take a guy out with one punch, light enough to move with the animal grace of a Ray Robinson, they made the evenings that are still unforgettable. Mickey Walker and Billy Conn, Robinson and Jake LaMotta and Marcel Cerdan and — to be remembered to the grave — Rocky Graziano's three wars with Tony Zale.

Nights like those come around ever so seldom now. Now basketball players do the fighting in the old Eighth Ave. house, and it's difficult to imagine what Friday night will be like in the New Garden rising over Penn Station.

Once in a long while, though, the old excitement comes back. It could happen on Nov. 10, even though that's a Thursday night. That night Emile Griffith fights Joey Archer. They are middleweights and the world championship is on the block.

Busiest of Champions

In the best and busiest of the divisions, Griffith is the busiest of champions. No man has ever had three middleweight title bouts in six months, but it was only last April 25 when Emile won the championship from Dick Tiger, and on July 13 he defended it against Archer.

This malingering was in Ireland in July, standing by a Cornemara pool cursing foully at a salmon that wouldn't stand and fight, and isn't qualified to testify on the first Griffith-Archer match. There were, however, 13,776 citizens in the Garden and $102,320 in the till in spite of the 101-degree weather.

Opinion varied as to the winner, among the officials and among the citizens. Today most qualified observers seem to agree that Griffith ran the game, ducking Archer's jab and working Joey over inside, seldom letting the Bronx boy fight his fight. They feel Artie Atala had it about right giving Griffith nine rounds to five with one even, though the other judge, Al Bert, made it only 8-7 for the champion and Johnny Lo Bianco, the referee, made it a draw at 7-7-1.

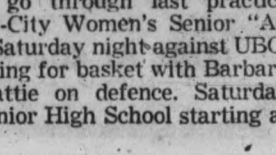

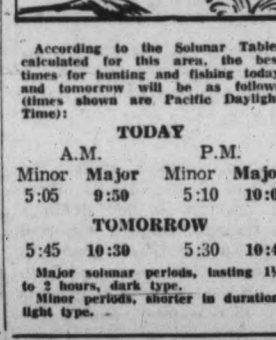

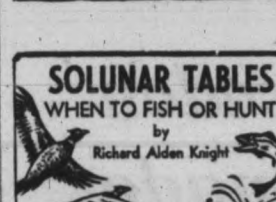

That's why they're at it again, of course. For all his slave bracelets and foppish threads and his enthusiasm for the frug and the boogaloo, the monkey and the watusi, Emile Griffith is a fighter who ducks no arguments. Last March when Archer's interests were screaming that Joey, not Griffith, should have the shot at Tiger's title, Emile told Teddy Brenner, "Make me with Archer first. If he wins I'll tear up the contract and he can have Tiger."

The Garden matchmaker thought he had that one made, but Archer said no, he didn't have to qualify for a title shot that way.

Now if you ask Griffith why he's taking Archer right back when he could collect on the title with far less risk, he says simply: "A lot of Joey's friends thought he beat me, especially when he caught me with that right in the 14th. I have to fight him again."

Gallant Calgary Stampede Now Need 22-Point Victory

SASKATCHEWAN 25, CALGARY 25

CALGARY — Calgary Stampede, hit this season by an unprecedented wave of injuries to regulars, were left with only a faint chance of making the Western Football Conference playdowns Tuesday night.

They missed success in another of their tremendous team efforts by only 24 seconds, when Jack Abendschan's field goal finally gave Saskatchewan Roughriders a 28-26 win in a wild game in which the Stampede had battled gamely from behind to go ahead with six minutes left.

LONG-SHOT CHANCE

Result left the Stampede two points behind the third-place Edmonton Eskimos, the club the Football club meets in the last game for both sides on Saturday in Edmonton.

A Calgary victory would tie the clubs for the last playoff spot, in which case third place would be decided on how the clubs fared against each other during the season.

And there's the rub, Eskimos won one and tied the other of the first two games. That brings it down to points for and against in the three games between the Alberta rivals. Edmonton's win was by 26-5, and that means the Stampede must win by 22 points Saturday to gain a tie that counts.

ROCKED EARLY

It looked to be over early last night as the Riders scored two touchdowns before the game was 10 minutes old.

Ran Lancaster gave Hugh Campbell a new Canadian Football League record at 8:17 when he found the great flanker in the end zone with a pass.

It was Campbell's 17th touchdown catch, breaking the CFL record set by Ernie Pitts of Winnipeg in 1959.

Less than two minutes later, Lancaster and Ed Buchanan combined on a pass play which brought an 80-yard touchdown. Abendschan again converted and the Stampede trailed, 10-0.

Calgary fought right back, and cut the lead in two before the first quarter was over as Pete Liske completed a 75-yard march in nine plays with an eighty-yard pass to Bill Goods. Larry Robinson converted.

Stampede moved 87 yards in four plays late in the second quarter for their second major score, Marshall Starks going over on a 23-yard pass play with Liske.

Robinson missed the convert try and Riders went ahead, 24-13, before the half on Lancaster pass to Gordie Barwell and a convert and field goal by Abendschan.

START AGAIN

Again the Stampede came back. Robinson got them started by racing 64 yards with an intercepted pass and then kicking the convert, and it was 20-25 starting the fourth quarter after Abendschan had got one point from a field-goal try.

It took eight plays to go 82 yards as the Stampede finally went ahead in the fourth quarter when Liske got the last throw for 369 yards, the Riders had a total offence of 501 yards.

ers moved from their 27-yard line to the Calgary four in four plays to set up Abendschan.

It was closer than other statistics indicated. With Lancaster having a great passing night with 18 completions in 30 throws for 369 yards, the Riders had a total offence of 501 yards.

Nationals Build On Scholarships

VANCOUVER (CP) — John J. Wintermeyer, president of the newly-formed Canadian Hockey Foundation, says the new group hopes to offer $250,000 worth of hockey scholarships annually in the near future.

Mr. Wintermeyer, accompanied by hockey-star Carl Brewer and Father David Bauer, former coach of the Canadian national hockey team, was in Vancouver at a banquet introducing the new organization.

He said the foundation will eventually provide a system of recruitment for Canada's national team.

Mr. Wintermeyer, a Toronto lawyer, was leader of the Ontario Liberal party from 1958 to 1963. He plans a cross-

Canada tour to promote the work of the CHF.

"We must at once create this non-profit organization to help support our national team financially," Mr. Wintermeyer said. "This is our opportunity to tell young Canadians we believe in them — and that we are willing to do something about it."

The CHF plans to set up two funds, a scholarship and a general fund, to enable it to offer financial assistance to young prospects trying out for the national team.

"With the federal government's help and the help of Canadians in every province we hope eventually to be in the position where we can offer $250,000 in scholarships annually," he said.

Garden Notes

Most Fungi Edible

By M. V. CHESNUT

One garden implement which seems to be passing out of general use is the grass catcher on the lawn mower. I can't say I mourn its passing, though, for I know of nothing more exasperating than to stop and empty that infernal folding contraption every few minutes while mowing the lawn.

Nowadays, with power mowers in general use, home gardeners simply put their way across the lawn, spraying grass clippings in all directions, and never bother to rake them up. And even those folks with pocket-handkerchief lawns who still tread the way behind a muscle-powered mower have learned that our lawns benefit from the mowings, always providing that the mower is set to cut high and mowing is done every three or four days so the clippings are fine and small and evenly distributed.

We are learning, too, that we get a much steeper and more beneficial action from chemical lawn fertilizers when they are used on a lawn rich in decaying grass clippings.

With the passing of the grass catcher, though, something new has been added to our lawns — foodstuffs! The decaying grass clippings in the soil have set up conditions almost ideal for the germination and growth of fungus spores, and with the cool weather of late summer and fall, almost anything is liable to pop up and mar the pristine beauty of our grass swards.

Big ones, little ones, flat ones, ball-like ones, pointed ones — they're all there. And if you want to try an interesting experience, you might have a go at pushing your highspeed rotary power mower through a thick patch of big, juicy toadstools. It is rather like throwing an egg into an electric fan!

While they can be eliminated fairly easily by drenching the ground with a mercury-type lawn fungicide, this autumn flush of fungus growth in the lawn isn't necessarily a bad thing. Some of them are good to eat — in fact, most of them are edible. The little Fairy Ring fungus, for instance, can kill your grass but makes very good eating, and is often dried for winter use in soups and stews. Shaggy Mane, Delicious Lactarius and the Giant Puffball are all edible and fairly common in lawns and meadow, along with the true meadow mushroom.

If you would like to supplement your diet with some of these new residents in your lawn, you will probably wonder how you can distinguish the edible ones from those which provide a one-way ticket for a fast trip to a better land. While my knowledge of fungi is sketchy, to say the least, I can tell you this much: There is no one simple test you can make to cull the edible from the poisonous kinds.

One common belief is that if a mushroom peels, it is good to eat. This is a dangerous superstition, for there is a most appetizing-looking mushroom called the Destroying Angel which peels as easily as an orange, and has been known to knock off 30 people in one dinner party. Neither is it true that a poisonous mushroom will blacken silver.

The one safe way is to get to know the edible kinds by sight, and to learn the distinguishing marks of the dangerous ones — there are only a couple you need worry about.

There is an excellent book for this purpose put out by the Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, called "Mushroom Collecting for Beginners," Publication No. 861. The pictures are clear, the descriptions easy to follow, and the danger signs are pointed out in such a way that it is virtually impossible to make a mistake. Unfortunately, my dog-eared copy doesn't indicate whether the publication is free for the asking or whether I was nicked 25 cents for it.

Mornings Rock ERMA BOMBECK

Signals Minimize Distress

Mothers are always confessing to me what a traumatic experience the mornings are... the bit where one kid eats the cereal box, another needs a can of sauerkraut, a length of hemp rope and 25 nuts with one-eighth inch holes drilled in them, while her husband is standing in the middle of the driveway shouting, "I am 39 years old. I make $20,000 a year. I will NOT carry this Donald Duck thermos to the office!"

Actually, I don't know what they're talking about. I have this co-ordination problem in the mornings which keeps me in the twilight zone until about 11 a.m. For example, I can't unstick my eyelashes. It's frustrating really. I'd like to tell someone about it, but I can't get enough saliva going to moisten my lips and when I do, only primitive, guttural sounds come out. In short, friend, I am not with it. I just stumble around and put coats on chairs and kiss lamps good-bye.

My condition has never been a problem until this year. My children are too close to school for bus service and on cold days are too far to walk or ride bikes, so a car and a driver has to be produced.

Naturally, I did what any living, devoted mother would do. I called my neighbor and said, "you're on." It was only then that I realized she too had a condition similar to mine. Something had to be done. The idea of talking on the phone to each other every morning broke us both out into a rash.

A signal. That was it. We'd have signals. If her husband were driving the car she would stumble to the hallway, somehow, and turn on her porch light by 8. That meant he would leave at 8:15.

However, if she turned the porch light and the driveway light on, that meant he was driving, but he was leaving at 8. On the other hand, if both lights were lit and the milk box lid was left ajar, that meant he had gotten up late and he didn't know what time he could get out.

If he was definitely not driving, the lid on the second garbage can would be left ajar. (I could see that from my bedroom window... or smell it, depending on the season.) If I wanted to confer about that decision, I had to set my snow shovel out by the garage and call in five minutes.

Now, if I was going to pick up the children in the afternoon, I was instructed to turn on the sprinkler by 2:30 p.m. If it was scout night and only three would be riding home, they were to put the bread sign in their window upside down. If I was not driving at all, my instructions were to tie a white handkerchief around the flag on my mailbox.

So, it sounds like an elaborate way to get out of using the phone every morning. It worked fine until last week when I went to check to see if the second garbage can lid was ajar. I saw white smoke coming out of their chimney. I rushed to the phone. "There's white smoke, what's that mean?" A tired voice mumbled, "We've got a new Pope!"

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Movie, Cost Sky-High

LONDON (NANA)—The Battle of Britain will be the most expensive picture ever made in England—$12,000,000 and every top star in cameo roles. Rather like Is Paris Burning? with every important star in France clamoring to be included. Some of those included—Simone Signoret, Yves Montand, Jean Paul Belmondo, Charles Boyer, Leslie Caron, and on and on. Also Orson Welles, who is French by inclination.

What do Carl Reiner and Marcello Mastroianni have in common? They both believe that airline stewardesses would make the best wives. Henry Fonda, who married one, would say yes. Carl, who dreams of being waited on the way girls do in the planes, is merely dreaming. Mastroianni made contact in La Dolce Vita when, if you remember, he chased a pretty young lady of the airlines. He has never forgotten.

We've had The Untouchables. And now producer Walter Shenson is preparing The Touchables—about four young girls who get into all sorts of delicious trouble. Walter, who transformed the Beatles into movie stars, is also preparing Don't Raise the Bridge, Lower the Water.

Rod Taylor is talking to MGM about Rudyard Kipling's The Man Who Would Be King, to team with Richard Burton who has promised John Huston he will make this one in India. How can Richard retire to write, with so many pictures offered him? The Kipling story has been hanging around for a long time. Clark Gable was the original choice... From an Italian magazine in London, Sophia Loren's mother was as beautiful as her daughter—but on the blondish side. As a young woman she won a look-alike Greta Garbo contest.

Elizabeth Hartman, who almost won an Oscar for her wistful performance in A Patch of Blue, was very happy to nose out Piper Laurie for The Glass Menagerie with Shirley Booth, which David Susskind's company is filming for television in England.

Tommy Steele's Half A Sixpence film is the first British musical made for the world market. I hope to see Tommy while I am here and also his leading lady, Julia Foster. You may remember her as one of the "birds" in Alfie... According to Frank Sinatra, whose Grosvenor Square penthouse is now one of the tourists' attractions in London, there were three "intelligent British reporters." Then one of them wrote a story about Frankie. And now there are only two. It's the same story with the press in Britain as in America. A mutual hatred.

Michael Caine, whom we can never stop quoting because he says such amusing things—"I've got to the envy barrier faster than anyone I know." And, discussing Hurray Sunday, with Jane Fonda, "This picture is so bloody sexy it steamed my glasses." Also, "I wouldn't put my money in the hands of people who don't have money. Even my accountant rides around in a Rolls Royce."

The cast of The Killing of Sister George has settled down in New York after the jitters of the first night I was happy to inform their London admirers. I had seen the play with Beryl Reid, Eileen Atkins, and Lally Bowers in London before the first night in New York and it simply wasn't the same performance, which accounts for the somewhat mixed reviews. It ought to do as well there as it did here.

John Kennedy in London is the owner of the famed 400 club. Kennedy, a personable youngish lad, was Tommy Steele's manager at the beginning of his career. London, of course, is still jumping, with gambling everywhere but the swinging is more self-conscious, it seems to me. The tempo reached its peak at least a year ago, and has been slipping down. But it is still fun in the British capital where they are still talking wonderingly of the fine Indian summer that followed the dreadful official summer.

Funny about Lynn Redgrave's sudden success in Gregory Girl. Unlike the other members of the famed acting family, Lynn did not want to act. She was daffy about horses and wanted to raise and show-jump them. Her next film, Smashing Time, with Rita Tushingham.

Remember When?

Asks HAL BOYLE

By HAL BOYLE

Memory beats money, particularly paper money, because most monetary units buy less as they grow older. But memories become worth more as time goes by. And you're richer than Croesus if you can look back and remember when—

The replacement of the old-fashioned cash drawer by the cash register made it more difficult for a clerk to raise enough to buy out the boss.

Across North America there wasn't a single working class home with a machine in the kitchen that could make its own ice cubes.

Mothers wanted their sons to get white collar jobs, because a guy who wore a white collar got paid more than one who wore a blue collar. Little girls liked to have their daddy smoke cigars—the paper bands on them made wonderful make-believe wedding rings. Young men still used that greasy stuff on their hair. In a real emergency they sometimes even slicked it down with lard.

The last thing Mama did before tiredly climbing the stairs to bed was to darn a flapful of the children's stockings—or patch them, if the kneeholes were too big. Every school desk had an inkwell, and if the girl who sat in front of you had long curls, your main goal in life was to dunk one of her curls in it.

Every small town had dozens of hitching posts—but none had a parking meter. One of the best places to hide money was in the family Bible, because even if he found it a thief would be too conscience-stricken to take it from there.

You knew a young lady was growing up when she insisted on removing from the family album the photo of her as a baby sprawled, sans clothes, on a blanket.

Every boy carried a knife, his most cherished possession, tied to a belt loop in his pants by a piece of string so he wouldn't lose it. In his pocket you could also find a good luck penny he had put on a street car track to be mashed by the trolley.

Those were the days. Remember?

Identification Trial Topic

Seven prosecution witnesses appeared before Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan Tuesday in the Supreme Court trial of three men charged with robbing a Victoria bank Feb. 18, using two sawn-off rifles.

Facing trial on a charge of having robbed the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond at about 5:55 p.m. that Friday are William Braumburger, Gordon Francis Duck and Harold Robinson Coulter.

Prior to calling the first witness, defence counsel H. A. D. Oliver of Vancouver set the pattern of his defence by challenging the police methods of attempting to establish the identity of the accused through photographs.

NO VARIETY

He claimed the pictures used by the police were numbered mug shots of a type that created prejudice in the minds of the viewers. He also maintained there had been no variety of pictures, only those of the accused being shown.

Mr. Justice Rutan said he would make no ruling on the methods of the police in their investigation, but found the pictures to be proper, and recalled the jury to start testimony.

Mr. Oliver said he wished the photos marked in evidence because he might show them at a later date to an appeal court or the Supreme Court of Canada. Mr. Justice Rutan said the photos were not in evidence at that point but let the record show mug shots were used.

LICENCE PLATE

Detective Lyle Somers testified to having received a licence plate on Feb. 19, B.C. No. 31-091, from Mrs. Mary McKenzie of 1035 Empress Avenue. She testified she found it on the boulevard near her home.

Det. Somers testified he examined a car the same day bearing licence No. 91-766. It was later established this car resembled one driven by a man who resembled the accused Braumburger, and who had signed into the Oak Park Motel at 616 Goldstream Avenue as "William Brown," on Feb. 12, for one week.

Mr. Oliver had a portion of the registration card from this motel stricken from evidence, since it contained notes written by the proprietor, Mrs. Iris L. Tyson.

TWO VEHICLES

Mrs. Tyson testified Brown (Braumburger) had signed in Feb. 12 for a week, with an unidentified man. Her chambermaid, Mrs. Joan Sutton, testified that a car answering to the description of Braumburger's, and an older panel truck had been around the motel unit for the week. She also testified the two had checked out at 11 a.m. the day of the robbery. Mrs. Tyson testified they had returned the same evening.

Mrs. Sutton said she had been able to identify two of the prisoners in the dock, Braumburger and Coulter, from the photographs in the preliminary hearing.

PLASTIC BAG

Letter carrier Gerald Laycock of 1157 Empress Avenue testified his son found a plastic bag in his front yard on the late afternoon of Feb. 19, the day following the robbery. He said the bag contained clothing, which he started to examine. When he found a woolen sleeve tied at one end and with holes out in it to resemble a balacava, he called police.

Det. Somers testified he answered the call and found two of the same type of sleeves (balacavas), one rubber glove, three men's fedoras, a woman's stocking with a hole in the side, a blue burberry and a reversible raincoat.

City of Vancouver analyst Edward Fennell testified that he compared human hairs found in one of the homemade balacavas with hairs from Coulter's head.

He said both specimens were dyed brown and appeared similar under microscopic examination, but admitted he had been unable to obtain sufficient dye for a spectrophotometer test. Under cross-examination, he admitted his tests were not conclusive, but gave him sufficient cause to believe both specimens were from the same person.

The bar manager of the Goldstream Inn, Reginald James Williams, said he had his rear licence plate, No. 31-091, stolen Feb. 18, two days after he had bought it. The number is the same as the one found on Empress Avenue.

The trial resumes at 10 a.m. today.

Nonhouse 'Saved'

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE, England (UPI) — Arthur Whiteby lives in a nonhouse. Nowhere in the official records of the town could there be found a record of his house.

This bureaucratic slip-up saved Whiteby's domicile. A demolition crew came to tear it down. The council estate of the town could there be found a record of his house.

He claimed the pictures used by the police were numbered mug shots of a type that created prejudice in the minds

Prince Charles Breaks Nose Playing Rugby

LONDON — Prince Charles has broken his nose playing rugby, Buckingham Palace announced.

The accident occurred at Gordonstoun, the Scottish school which the 17-year-old heir to the throne attends.

Princess Anne, 16, broke her nose last April when she was thrown from a horse.

A palace spokesman said: "Naturally the Queen and Prince Philip were concerned but there is no question of them going to Gordonstoun. It is not like a serious illness."

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — Trygve Lie, 70, former secretary-general of the United Nations, says he does not expect the Viet Nam war to flare into a world conflict and that the parties may meet for peace talks around the new year.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Sen. George Murphy (R-Calif.) vigorously denied rumors he is a terminal cancer case and may have to resign. The senator underwent surgery Aug. 25 for removal of a malignant tumor on the vocal cord. His voice is still hoarse and he uses a microphone plus an amplifier to be heard.

AUSTIN, Tex. — After 20 children, Mrs. Albert L. Herrera says: "I think this is enough." Mrs. Herrera, 40, the wife of a truck driver, has just given birth to a boy, Gerard. Her oldest is 24. All were single births.

LONDON — There have been so many escapes (244) from British jails in the past six months that The Daily Mail printed a cartoon showing Home Secretary Roy Jenkins knocking on a prison door and asking, "Any-one in?"

LEEDS, England — A judge has decided that the taste and smell of a wife's cooking is worth £10,000 ($30,000). He awarded the sum in damages to John Alfred Beavers, 52, who suffered brain damage and lost his sense of taste and smell in a road accident. Judge Falks said: "The total loss of the pleasures of the table is something that calls for compensation in a generous manner."

NEW YORK — Arthur William Brown, 85, a Canadian-born magazine illustrator for some of this century's best known authors, died at his home here. He illustrated stories for Booth Tarkington, Clarence Budington Kelland, Irvin S. Cobb and Ring Lardner, among others.

FOLKESTONE, England — Englishman Alexander Saul-Hunt has announced he plans to take in French washing—bringing it over the Channel by hovercraft.

He believes he can undercut French laundries and dry cleaners, and will offer a 72-hour service.

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE — A Spaniard was taken into custody by police investigating the violent death Oct. 10 of a Canadian artist in the Canary Islands. Jachet Imelda Pouliot, a native of Quebec City who had lived most of her life in Montreal, was found dead of strangulation in nearby Granadilla.

WINDSOR, Ont. — A national policy is required to attack the problem of the pollution of Canadian waters, an official of the Canadian Institute on Pollution Control said Monday. Albert E. Berry, secretary-treasurer of the institute, told 400 delegates attending the annual conference of the group, that water pollution and control measures need to be defined clearly so that a uniform concept of the problem can be adopted.

WINDSOR, Ont. — Canada's centennial year will break all records for highway deaths, the chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council predicts. In an interview, Keith H. MacDonald said "it is appalling that this should happen on our birthday but that is the way we are heading."

SOMERSET, Pa. — A chartered bus carrying 50 members of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians rammed the rear of a tractor-trailer on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, injuring 29 entertainers and the bus driver. Waring, celebrating his 50th anniversary in show business, was in the rear of the bus and suffered slight bruises of the legs. While awaiting the arrival of ambulances, Waring went around his group, comforting the injured.

How "Safe" Is The Cigarette You Smoke?

Are today's filter-tip cigarettes really safer than plain ends? How much harmful tar and nicotine is in the smoke you inhale into your lungs? The current Reader's Digest features a factual, new laboratory report showing the latest tar and nicotine content of 25 leading Canadian cigarettes and reveals that some actually contain 200%—or more—tar and nicotine than others and that the smoke from some filter-tips actually has a higher content of these injurious substances than some plain ends. School Bus Dispute

Board Asks Holmes To Reconsider Post

Sooke school board works superintendent William Holmes, who resigned his position in protest against the handling of parents' complaints on bus discipline, has been asked by the board to reconsider.

A delegation of parents attended the last school board meeting, and complained that Mr. Holmes had been rude to them. They said bus driver George Cottyn did not keep discipline on the bus, used bad language, and also was discriminatory in his treatment of certain children.

Most of the complaints arose out of an incident when Mr. Holmes and RCMP were called to take a boy off the bus when he refused to get off.

At a school board meeting in Colwood Tuesday, a number of letters were read, and discussed in committee.

School board chairman John Bartamus said, "On the evidence submitted to the board, we find that no blame of any kind can be attached to Mr. Holmes, and we want him to withdraw his resignation. We feel he has acted in the best interests of the children on the bus at all times."

"It was Mr. Cottyn's duty to report any trouble to the proper people and this he did."

Parents were told that complaints had to be made in writing before the board could consider them.

'Distressed' Family Not Unhappy Now

By JOHN MATTERS

Saanich's Lane family, which said it was too close to a proposed motor vehicle testing station for comfort, is not distressed after all.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lane, who live at one corner of a triangle at McKenzie and Cedar Hill Cross Road where the station is planned, said Tuesday night they've had some appealing offers for their property.

They first objected to having the entire site rezoned for the station, which would bring 1,000 cars whizzing by their home each month.

They told a lands and planning meeting of Saanich council the only remaining problem is to get their property zoned for a commercial enterprise.

While the Lanes brought good news to the committee, councillors felt that a strip of Saanich-owned property along McKenzie, which the government wants to incorporate into the station, should bring more money.

The government has offered $600 but councillors felt lands commissioner Jack Lindsay should try for more.

The testing station, planned near a new liquor store and a parking development, offends Don Kyle, 1002 McKenzie.

Mr. Kyle said in a letter none of the proposed developments are compatible with the area. A residential district was being encroached on by commercial enterprise, he claimed.

Greater Victoria's 1,063 teachers are asking salary increases averaging 15 per cent.

Spokesmen for the teachers say the raise is necessary to bring their pay closer to that which other occupations are earning.

The school district's negotiators have not made a counter offer. The board will consider the contract issues at a special meeting, probably next Monday.

THREE HOURS

Details of the proposal of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association were made public Tuesday by trustee George Curran, a member of the board's negotiating team. He and board spokesman Wilfred Peck of Cowichan Bay spent three hours in a meeting with the teachers.

Mr. Curran said that a detailed analysis of the GVTA's new salary formula wasn't available until Tuesday.

Pay for teachers is now based on six classifications tied to educational qualifications. In addition, salaries rise in varying annual increments for a maximum of 14 years.

TEACHERS' FORMULA

The teachers' proposed formula calls for increased minimums and maximums, increased increments and a shortening of the increment period to 10 years.

A teacher with two years of university education now begins at $4,000 per year and rises in 10 increments of $200 to a maximum of $6,300.

The GVTA asks that this category start at $5,000 and reach a maximum of $7,500 in 10 years.

UNIVERSITY TRAINING

One-third of the district's teachers have five years of university training. They now start at $5,500 and get 14 annual raises of $285 to a maximum of $9,205.

Under the GVTA formula, these teachers would begin at $6,500 and rise in 10 years to a maximum of $10,000.

NEW CATEGORY

The GVTA wants elimination of the bottom category, where pay starts at $3,325 and rises to $4,105. The teachers want pay in this sector fixed at $5,500.

They also ask creation of a new pay category for teachers with a master's degree, generally requiring six years of university education. This would pay from $7,500 to $11,500.

NO COUNTER-OFFER

Trustee Curran said the board's negotiating team didn't make an immediate counter-offer "because their request was so far out."

He said a 15.26 per cent average salary increase would cost the school district an additional $1,196,025. This would represent 4.31 mills on the 1965 assessment, he added.

'WORTH AS MUCH'

Gerald Guest, spokesman for the GVTA, said Tuesday that "it's time we put a value on education."

"A laborer earns $5,500 yearly. Do we think a teacher with two years of university training is worth as much as a laborer?"

Mr. Guest said the average B.C. journeyman earns $7,900 yearly. After five years in university a teacher starts at $5,500.

"These are the basic justifications for our argument," he said.

NO DOUBT

"There is no doubt that this represents considerable increases over our present scale. But there have been considerable increases elsewhere this year."

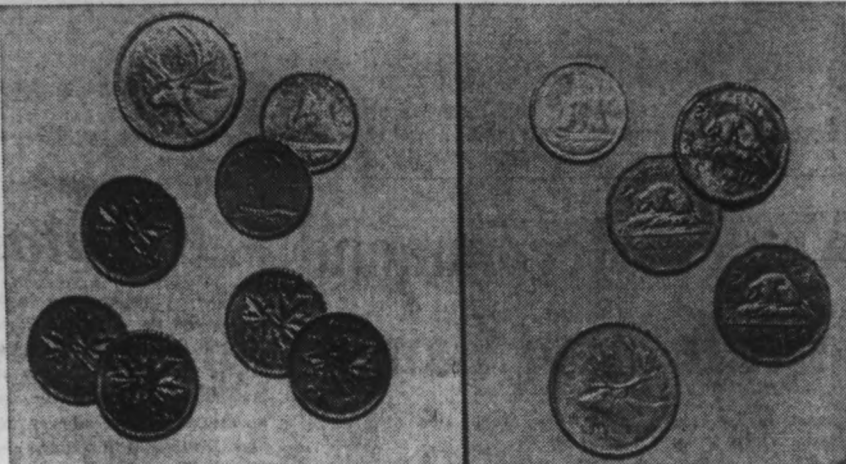

On Tuesday the B.C. School Trustees Association issued a report announcing that the majority of B.C. teachers' groups have asked 15 per cent salary boosts.

Last year Greater Victoria teachers asked an average 10 per cent raise, and got 5.4 per cent in an arbitration award.

The United Appeal has collected just 50 cents of every dollar needed in this year's drive. Tuesday's total topped $226,004, and the goal is $452,000. Residential returns for the day totalled $2,258 at 5 p.m. The girls who live in Emily Carr Hall, University of Victoria, later turned in $457 after a canvass in Gordon Head, under team captain Mrs. Diana Kaleh, who is don of the residence.

Quick-Thinking Student Gives Breath to Baby

by JIM BRAHAN

A baby's life was saved by the quick thinking of a first year University of Victoria student Tuesday night.

Joanne Davis, 2½ months, was reported in fairly good condition after being rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital by Saanich fire department ambulance about 9:45 p.m. when she had choked and ceased breathing during a coughing spell.

Saanich police said the baby had been ill for about a week and a half and during a violent session of coughing after her mother picked her up she had stopped breathing.

VAIN EFFORT

Zoology student Keith Hodson, 18, of 877 Royal Oak, who was visiting with the Davises in their home at 4726 Patricia Bay Highway, tried mouth-to-mouth respiration in an effort to revive the infant but it didn't work.

Police said the baby was reported to have started to turn blue and had not breathed for two or three minutes when the student located a length of rubber tubing and forced it down the baby's throat.

SUCKED ON TUBE

In a last-ditch effort the youth sucked on the end of the tube and withdrew the obstruction and the infant began to breathe. Both police and ambulance arrived moments after the baby's breathing was restored.

Esquimalt

Renewal Forum Planned

Esquimalt's zoning committee is studying the prospects of urban renewal programs for some areas in the municipality and has called a public forum to discuss the topic at 8 p.m. Thursday in the municipal hall.

Committee chairman Roy Elphick said Tuesday it would be a round-table fact-finding discussion meeting.

"This is a new approach for us and we will get some guidance from the top men in the field. We may find we have areas that will qualify for urban renewal."

TWO AREAS

He suggested two areas that may qualify are the block on the south side of Esquimalt Road across from the government liquor store, and also the industrial area near Devonshire.

Discussing the fine points of urban renewal at the meeting will be J. E. Brown, deputy municipal affairs minister; A. H. Roberts, Capital Region Planning Board director; R. G. Clauson, Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation regional supervisor.

Zoning committee members and representatives of the Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce will also be at the table.

On Hospital Grants

Municipalities Favor Oak Bay's Formula

By A. H. MURPHY

An Oak Bay formula which involves earmarking of provincial grant increases for hospital construction will probably be the basis of a proposal to be discussed by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee at its next meeting.

This was learned following a closed meeting of municipal leaders in the office of Mayor Toone Tuesday and a guarded statement, following the talks, in which the mayor admitted that the Oak Bay proposal was discussed.

It was also learned that the big part of the hour-and-a-half talk was on the matter of a professional survey of hospital needs in the district.

EMERGENCY SITUATION

That the need for additional hospital facilities exists has never been denied. In fact the situation has been described as "desperate," and it was because of this emergency that Tuesday's meeting was called. Reeve Hugh Curtis represented Saanich, Reeve Allan Cox, Oak Bay, Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, and Reeve R. G. Lee, Central Saanich.

FORMULA DISCUSSED

Following the meeting the mayor said a recommendation would be made to the intermunicipal committee. A formula based on allocation of increases in provincial per capita grants was discussed, the mayor said, along with the need for an accurate assessment of hospital needs and methods of financing and construction.

NOTHING DISCLOSED

Municipal representatives said following the meeting that a recommendation was forged during the session in the mayor's office but that a commitment was given that no details would be disclosed until the intermunicipal committee had had an opportunity to consider the matter.

'Victoria University Ideal'

Law Faculty Proposed

By BILL STAVDAL

The University of Victoria is investigating the proposal of the Victoria Bar Association that a law school be established on the campus.

"... A second law faculty in this province is inevitable in the near future," said a lawyers' brief presented to the university senate recently. "We believe that it should be at Victoria."

A five-man committee appointed by the senate meets this week to begin a study of the need and feasibility of the bar association's proposal.

The brief notes that across Canada there is a law school for approximately each 1,000,000 population. B.C., with population nearing 2,000,000, has only one—at UBC.

"There are constantly growing demands by business, industry, government and administrative bodies for persons with legal training," says the brief.

Both the university and the community would benefit from a law faculty, the brief goes on.

"The city of Victoria is, in our view, ideal for the establishment of a second law school in British Columbia. In addition to being the second-largest centre of population ... it is also the provincial capital, thus rendering available a large number of key personnel who could provide or assist in the provision of unique types of legal training."

The association says it is interested in "a faculty of law in which the traditional methods of teaching law in Canada would be expanded and improved."

"The Bar is firmly convinced that the introduction of material from other disciplines, the opportunity to study the functions and methods of government and administrative bodies, and the observation by students of how law works in government and daily practice, are essential elements of legal education."

Alan Macfarlane, president of the association, said Tuesday that the group would like any new law school to include practical training as well as the traditional study of precedent-setting cases.

Law students could visit the offices of land registry, companies' registry, the superintendent of brokers, the attorney-general's department, the legislature and municipal offices, Mr. Macfarlane suggested.

Residents who live near Quadra and McKenzie say there's something exceedingly foul in the air.

And they blame it on a sewage treatment plant near the Saanich municipal works yard.

Neville Lile, Saanich's municipal engineer, said Tuesday there have been a few complaints about the odor and the problem is being investigated.

"We're making tests of the equipment to find out just what's going wrong," said Mr. Lile.

Mrs. D. L. Kyle, 1002 McKenzie, said the odor seems worst about mid-afternoon and 10 p.m.

A Man's-Eye View on the Long and Short of It

—William E. John

"Why can't women make up their minds about their hem-lines," is the plaintive cry of the author of this article.

Women Recommend White Arm Bands

Because of the large number of traffic deaths resulting from car drivers unable to see pedestrians in dark clothing, the Victoria Council of Women is instituting a project for traffic safety.

The idea, gained after hearing Sgt. A. Bentley of the Victoria City Police Traffic Department speak on "Pedestrian Safety Measures" in June, was discussed at the recent council meeting in the Bay's Douglas Room. Mrs. H. L. MacKenzie demonstrated the effectiveness of white armbands, striped with fluorescent tape which glowed in the dark as a safety measure for pedestrians walking in dark areas or at night.

It was suggested that the council's affiliates and other community-minded organizations be asked to support the project. Further information will be given by contacting Mrs. H. L. MacKenzie, 383-2607, or Mrs. Bert Noel, 384-3485.

Guest speaker was Mrs. T. H. Johns of the Community Chest, who with Bill Patton spoke on the work and origin of the organization. Beginning in 1937 at the YMCA, a board of directors was appointed and local businessmen volunteered their services for a budget committee. A campaign committee was also selected for promotion of the cause.

The organization keeps an "open-door" policy to assist any group able to meet specific requirements. Now 21 agencies benefit from the program.

An annual report is published, she continued. No agency receives more than its requirements; surplus must be returned to the main fund.

Mr. Patton added that 89 per cent of funds collected go to the agencies and the balance is reserved for operating costs. Mrs. Johns stated that the idea of the Community Chest fund is to prevent the overlapping of separate efforts to raise money for a number of facilities.

Reports were given on the recent semi-annual conference of the Provincial Council of Women in Dawson Creek. Mrs. E. L. Johns conveyed the tea which followed.

Alsford-Elder Vows

Velvet Appliques Trim Satin Gown

Mrs. Joe A. Elder travelled from her home in Revere, Sask., to attend the wedding of her daughter, Margaret, to Mr. David H. Alsford. The bride's gown was designed by Mrs. Jim Gierken, travelled from Unity, Sask., for the ceremony.

The wedding took place in St. Andrew's Cathedral, with Father A. I. MacDonald officiating. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Philips, 3570 Beach Drive.

Given in marriage by George Molnar, the bride wore a gown of satin starred with velvet floral appliques. The train extended back from the empire waistline. Her veil was shoulder-length, and she carried a bouquet of Baccara roses.

Similar gowns in aqua tones were worn by the bride's attendants. The floor-length gowns were styled along empire lines. Headpieces were matching rosebuds, and they carried single long stemmed roses.

Miss Donna Carpenter was maid of honor and bridesmaids were the Misses Cherrie Dobbie and Sharon Lynch.

Charles McGilvery was best man, and ushering guests were David Broad and Tom Glenn.

At the reception which followed in the Elks Hall, the head table was centred with a tiered wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Candles and roses flanked the cake. Eugen Fitterer proposed the toast to his sister-in-law.

The newlyweds travelled on honeymoon to California. The new Mrs. Alsford donned a wool suit in avocado green tones with white accents for travelling. Accessories were en tone.

What's happened to women's fashions?

Have you noticed their skirt lengths lately? Stroll along Douglas Street; it's an education. You'll see skirts all the way from the calf to above the knee.

Normally, lemming-like, the poor dears seem as befuddled as a Viet Cong prisoner.

And it's not only the hemline. Indecision is also apparent at the top. The first statistic is hopelessly schizophrenic, running the gamut from totally concealed flattening to par exposure.

What's happened? What foul conspiracy is afoot? It's no good blaming the Russians or the Chinese (has Mao thought about this?) or Bennett or Ingham, Bergman, De Gaulle maybe, though I doubt it.

As far back as anyone remembers, as regularly as clockwork, the Parisian oracle has spoken year after year, and women the world over, like Caesar, have rushed to do its bidding. Hems up, hems down, waists, no waists; bosoms, no bosoms.

Like the Grenadier Guards' detachment I once saw marched on to a London subway platform and then march its full length and on to the rails through a tunnel because the officer in charge had stopped to consult a porter and forgotten to cry halt, women have always acted without questioning authority.

This year, the oracle had failed to speak and the resultant tizzy is terrible to behold.

Now the extraordinary thing is that while their elders are at sixes and sevens, desperate for guidance, teen-agers (remember those young things who were supposed to be seen and not heard?) have received the Word—and acted.

Carnaby Street—you must have heard of him—has spoken: "Boys shall be girls and girls shall be more so; locks shall fall, hems shall rise, rise, and Bosoms shall take their chance, the thigh's the thing."

This Street fellow, more powerful even than Mary Quant, decreed "snip" and blimey they did! Where will it all end? You may well ask. I don't know the outcome, but I do know what's going on and it's terribly serious.

Carnaby Street is English. Incensed at the loss of the Empire and De Gaulle's refusal to allow Britain into the Common Market, he devised a devilish plot.

It's very complicated and I won't bore you with the various machinations, but the Beatles were part of it, I understand. Their role was to mesmerize their followers into unthinking receptiveness. That done, Carnaby Street took over. The rest we know.

The French are furious. Midnettes are murmuring, the lords of the rue de la Paix are seething. Something's got to give. As if we hadn't enough trouble already what with Laos, Daniel Johnson, Peru and the weather.

The solution, it seems to me, is to create a new clothes czar who will stabilize a deteriorating situation by issuing a firm, no-nonsense order to our bemused women. He must draw the line, say just below the knee, and have done with this shilly-shallying. Women are desperate I tell

British Film Show Depicts Guiding

The film, Branching Out, will be shown for the first time in Victoria at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 28, in St. Andrew's Church Hall, Courtney Street.

Planning to attend are Rangers, Guides, Brownies, Sixers, their parents and other adult members of the Victoria Area Girl Guide Movement. Scouters and interested members of the public are invited to attend.

Mrs. H. P. McKeever, area commissioner, will open the affair.

The film, depicting girls and boys of the Senior Branch of Guiding and Scouting, was filmed professionally in locations which cover parts of all four countries of the British Isles. The theme is inspiring and demonstrates the possibilities for community service, challenging adventure and vocational training in the senior branch of the Girl Guide Movement.

The showing is timely as it coincides with a surge of enthusiasm for Ranger-Cadet activities which has been the immediate result of the new age grouping in Guides. This year the Victoria area boasts two new Ranger companies. Bowker District (Oak Bay) has a new Land Ranger Company with Mrs. S. T. Fitzpatrick as captain and Lakehill has a Sea Ranger Crew, S.R.S. "Beaver" led by Mrs. J. A. Phillips, the skipper, and Miss Shirley Clarke, first mate. In addition Victoria's First Cadet Company, formed last year, meets monthly under the leadership of Mrs. J. Richards.

Prior to the film there will be a brief program showing some of the lighter side of Guiding, with the 18th Victoria Brownie Pack, 10th Victoria Guide Company and the S.R.S. Victory Crew being featured.

Cadet Helen Wollard, a University of Victoria student, will be introduced by Miss Marion Wollard, deputy area commissioner. Miss Wollard was one of two representing Canada at Our Cabana in Mexico and spent six weeks as guest of the American Girl Scouts this summer.

Miss Wollard will also present the six girls, Jeanne Moreau, Colleen Wilson, Stephanie Corby, Lynn M. McArthur, Anne Pugh and Susan L. Pesch, who were chosen to attend Heritage Camps across Canada during the past summer.

This year he guessed his way to first prize in the novice section for his lamingtons (coconut-covered chocolate sponge cakes); first prize for his sponge sandwiches; first prize for his plain cake and first prize for scones.

He won third prizes for more scones and a sultana cake. Brother Stewart was an apprentice pastry cook before becoming a Christian Brother. He cooks for 63 people daily.

Gen. Allard greeted by Commandant D. B. Wurtele at Royal Roads.

'Politicians Won't Decide New Uniforms'

Another Look At Rejection

Raj Pagely's BA degree from Punjab University in India is to get closer scrutiny by the military. Told of the Esquimalt resident's application to join the RCAF under the direct entry officer plan, and his rejection because his BA was not recognized in Canada, Chief of Defence Staff J. V. Allard promised to look into the case himself.

"If the man has suffered any injustice, we'll get to the bottom of it — you can assure him of that," said Gen. Allard. Mr. Pagely, 31, who lives at 444 Devida, immigrated to Canada six years ago, and is at present working for a plywood manufacturing company.

By BOB PETHICK

The armed forces, not the politicians, will decide what uniforms Canadian servicemen will wear, Gen. Jean Victor Allard said here Tuesday.

Answering a question on whether politicians would have the final say on uniforms, Gen. Allard replied:

"No, they won't. Some political types tend to play these things way beyond belief. We in the service look at things calmly. We know what is good for us regardless of the politicians."

COULDN'T SAY

Questioned about recent rumors, the general said he could not say whether the Queen's Own Rifles would be transferred from Work Point and the base closed.

The grey-haired general, who gestures in Gallic fashion and in some lights looks a little like Maurice Chevalier, believes in direct contact with his troops. "It's the only way to take appropriate action on problems that exist. If a problem is passed on to the senior staff, I might not hear about it until a year later," he said.

The general toured armed forces establishments in a lightning visit and as one officer put it was much more interested in talking to the men than looking at the buildings.

FUSHES CAREERS

The outspoken commander said service personnel would be pleasantly surprised with integration. He said his assignment was making sure the service provided youth with an attractive career for a long time.

He said troops would be briefed on his studies by the end of the year and would be surprised in how they have improved their lot.

TRANSFERS LEGAL

He said removal of legal barriers in the National Defence Act would help integration run smoothly in that it would allow a man in one service to transfer to another if there was more opportunity for promotion in his trade.

Removal of the legal barriers is now up to the parliamentarians, he said.

Questioned on what he thought of retired officers criticizing the present armed forces policies, Gen. Allard said. "When they were in the armed forces they knew what they were doing. The people that are in charge now are the people who know what is going on now." "I used to admire some Second World War commanders until I read their memoirs," he said.

Oak Bay Replacing Pavilion

Tenders will be called this weekend on a $67,000 two-storey Tudor-style pavilion for Windsor Park to replace the present 12-year-old building.

Bids on the job, which was checked over at a meeting of Oak Bay committee Tuesday night, must be in by Nov. 18.

The 92-foot by 32-foot structure, designed in keeping with Oak Bay's English style, will have locker rooms and change rooms on either side of a large room which will be used for a variety of activities.

Outside washroom facilities will be provided for spectators at park sporting events.

A second storey over the activity room will contain quarters for a full-time caretaker. Council feels this will cut down on vandalism.

The building is to be completed by April 15 in time for the start of summer activities.

The works committee was told 20 workmen had been laid off from casual jobs in the last 10 days.

There is a possibility they may be rehired again when the municipality starts its winter works program early in November. Top honors and a $1,000 prize went to a 22-year-old Victoria artist Tuesday in an exhibition of the work of young B.C. painters sponsored by the University of Victoria and the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Joe Kennedy, illustrator for the architectural department of the provincial department of public works, was named winner of the competition, organized by the university's centennial committee.

Runner-up in the painting section was Brian Fisher, 27, of Vancouver, who received $500 for his polymer, Dangerous Passage. Third prize of $250 went to Leonard Brett, of North Burnaby, with honorable mentions to Bodo Pfeiffer, 29, and Michael King, 20, both of Vancouver.

In the graphics section, first prize of $100 went to Jane Adams, 23, of Vancouver, for a colored ink work entitled Number One.

Second prize of $50 went to Philip Harrison, 23, of Victoria.

After 19 years as manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, Charles E. Walls will resign from the post Jan. 1.

Mr. Walls, 61, said Tuesday that he would remain with the federation in an advisory capacity.

Miss Victoria, Susan Smythe, leaves Monday for Toronto to take part in the Miss Canada pageant. Thanks to Lloyd Corbett, 36, of 115 Ladysmith, she's had a set of drums for practising. She'll be playing the drums at the pageant, doing some public speaking and hoping to bring back the title won two years ago by Linda Douma of Sidney.

A series of three panel discussions on the future of B.C. Indians begins today at the University of Victoria.

The open meetings will be held on successive Wednesdays at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre, Q Building, the Gordon Head campus.

Tonight a panel of Indians will discuss their views of the future.

Strachan Hits 'Deceit' Over Mine's Plans

Western Mines used "subterfuge and deceit" to hide the true nature of its operation within the boundaries of Strathcona Park, NDP leader Robert Strachan said in Victoria Tuesday.

He said the disclosure in the company's annual report last Friday that it would operate an open pit mine at Myra Creek was "completely contrary to what a company spokesman told the special legislative committee last spring.

"The company told us almost all the tailings would be fed back into the mine tunnel and so led the committee to believe this would be an ordinary mining venture."

ANOTHER EXAMPLE

"Now we learn it is to be an open pit mine. This is just another example of subterfuge and deceit which will leave a shocking scar in the park area," Mr. Strachan said.

The company has deliberately used a step by step procedure of announcing its plan, he said, "rather than tell the whole truth in one shocking statement."

"Had the company started out by telling all that we now know will happen, it would never have been given permission to take the first step. The public would never have stood for it. But now the screws are being turned tighter."

"It seems that major corporations like Consolidated Mining and Smelting, which is the major shareholder in Western Mines, can do what they like in this province," he said.

Russians Looking At B.C. Industry

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Six Russian forestry experts met Resources Minister Ray Williston here Tuesday, to find out how British Columbia manages its huge forest products industry.

The delegation, headed by Mikhail Vasilievich Kanevsky, chief of the logging branch of the Russian Ministry for Timber, Pulp and Wood Processing Industry, spent the whole day in the Legislative Buildings.

The Russians met with Mr. Williston in the morning and spent the afternoon with John Stokes, B.C.'s assistant chief forester.

NATIONAL TOUR

The minister said later that the Russians, members of a technical exchange group on a nation-wide tour of Canadian forestry operations, were particularly interested in forest fire protection, reforestation programs and general administrative practices concerning forest lands and land ownership.

Hilding Ekblad, of the Vancouver consulting engineering firm of Sandwell and Company Ltd., who accompanied the Russians, said in an interview the Russians wanted to know "how much effect the government has on the forest industry."

He said they were informed that Mr. Williston "exercises complete control" because of the fact that the provincial government owns 95 per cent of the forests in this province.

Mr. Williston was surprised to learn of the Russians' interest in forest ownership. But he conceded that government ownership of the resources "is an unusual circumstance in forested areas throughout the world today."

UP-ISLAND

From Victoria, the delegation will go to Duncan-Cowichan area to see coastal logging methods and equipment, and then on to Port Alberni, where it will be guests of MacMillan Bloedel Limited from Friday to Monday.

The Russians will return to Vancouver Monday, fly to Toronto on Thursday and leave Montreal for Moscow the following Tuesday.

Medicare Leaps First Hurdle

OTTAWA (CP) — The medicare insurance bill received approval in principle by a vote of 182 to 21 in the Commons Tuesday night.

The Conservative and Social Credit parties split on second reading after an acrimonious eight-day debate.

The bill was opposed by 10 Conservatives, seven Creditists, two Social Credit members and two independents.

The legislation still requires clause-by-clause study and third reading, which could be a lengthy process since opposition parties have promised to introduce many amendments.

Ottawa Conference

This Is Day They Walk On Eggs

By RON COLLISTER,
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This is the day that makes or breaks the federal-provincial conference here.

The federal government was to make its final, take-it-or-leave-it proposals in two crucial areas:

- The phasing out of Ottawa aid for vocational and technical schools over a six-year period starting next March.
- Many of the provinces were bitterly critical of the impact of this on them, and Ottawa agreed to reconsider this particular proposal. (See story on Page 15.)

LUNA XII CIRCLES MOON

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters) — The Soviet space shot Luna XII went into orbit around the moon at 4:47 p.m. EDT Tuesday, scientists at the Jodrell Bank radio-telescope reported.

Luna XII, launched Saturday, may be the Soviet Union's first lunar orbiting craft to carry cameras to take close-up pictures of the moon's surface, though its mission has not been defined.

MOSCOW (AFP) — The Soviet news agency Tass confirmed today that the Soviet satellite Luna XII has gone into orbit around the moon.

Mail Trucks Keep Crown

Leaf Plan Withers

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday that the government has backed away from a post office plan to remove the Canadian coat-of-arms and the words royal mail from postal trucks.

He sparked a Commons uproar when he charged that the Liberals "remove the Crown" at every opportunity. They "endeavored, by stealth, to get away with this and got caught." Now the government was taking its usual course — running away.

Acting Prime Minister Martin angrily denied that the government has taken steps to remove references to the Queen. He said Liberals are as loyal to the Queen as is the Conservative chief.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux had trouble keeping order.

The unscheduled debate began when Postmaster-General Cote read a four-page statement saying information from his department formed the basis for an Oct. 13 report that the coat-of-arms and the words royal mail gradually would be replaced by a maple leaf emblem on postal trucks.

This had been published before the matter could be studied by the cabinet, however, and he regretted any misunderstandings.

He had ordered the preparation of a simple symbol for the post office, but had no "intention of interfering with the proper use of any existing symbol."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the postmaster-general's explanation "just cannot hold water."

He read a Commons exchange of Oct. 14 when Mr. Cote, asked whether the coat-of-arms would be removed and replaced by another symbol, had replied:

"Yes, Mr. Speaker. We are going to adopt an emblem which will represent a truly Canadian post office and which will give a real interpretation to the post office act."

NPD Leader Douglas said the Liberals again were showing "their genius for stumbling from crisis to crisis."

Did Ottawa Approve?

CAR LOOPHOLE LET IN 10,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury told the Commons Tuesday the revenue department is conducting a "semi-judicial investigation" into a car import transaction involving Studebaker and Volkswagen.

Revenue Minister Benson confirmed that the transaction is under investigation.

Neither minister offered a direct reply when T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, asked whether they were aware the transaction involved Studebaker of Canada buying Volkswagens in the U.S., importing them into Canada duty-free under the Canada-U.S. auto agreement and then reselling them to Volkswagen at a "handsome profit."

MOTION REJECTED

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux disallowed a motion by Alfred Hales (PC — Wellington South) for an emergency debate on the issue.

Mr. Drury, Mr. Benson, External Affairs Minister Martin and John Turner, minister without portfolio, all argued against an emergency debate.

DEAL MADE

Michael Starr (PC-Ontario) said Studebaker, in the throes of going out of business at Hamilton, made a deal with another company to evade duty and that the government was party to the deal.

Mr. Benson said a letter was written to officials of his department asking whether a transaction would fall under the terms of the car treaty, which permits Canadian car manufacturers to import foreign cars or parts duty-free.

A department official had replied that if the transaction was carried out in a certain way it would fall under the terms.

THE QUESTION

The question now is, Mr. Benson said, whether the transaction was carried out in conformity with the opinion given by the department official.

Mr. Benson did not reveal the names of the writer of the original letter or of the official who replied.

Labor Wins Freeze

LONDON (UPI) — The House of Commons Tuesday night approved the Labor government's compulsory freeze on wages and prices by a vote of 307-239.

The order made violators liable to $1,400 fine.

They will probably face disciplinary action from the Labor members of parliament and could be expelled.

They're Inevitable

All Those Socks Could Mean Wedded Bliss

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A spirited spat is good for most marriages, a psychiatrist said Tuesday, but watch out for overkill.

"Marriage fights have the character of a pitched battle," said Dr. Alfred D. Messer.

"Not only does one want to defeat the opposition, but defeat him so soundly that he will never rise again."

He told the American Psychiatric Association convention that arguments are inevitable in a marriage and probably offer one of the best ways couples have to work out touchy problems.

"Two individuals who live intimately together must occasionally frustrate one another," said Messer, an Emory University professor.

Neither spouse makes much of these problems — toothpaste tubes squeezed in the middle, dirty socks on the floor, burned potatoes, broken budgets — until they build up to a flashpoint, Messer said.

"There is an explosion," he said. "One partner will then drag out a catalogue of these incidents in an attempt to 'lay' the other partner."

"What is said in the heat of battle cannot, of course, be taken as the whole truth," he said. Husband and wife must keep in mind the theme of the fight and not concentrate too hard on the particulars.

"When most of the frustrations have been talked out or discharged in some vicarious way," he said, the fight can be ended. At this point one partner will release a coy dove of peace.

"The gesture itself may be quite innocuous. A woman may decide to bake a particular food her husband likes, or mend his sock; a husband may decide to buy a particular household item the couple had talked about purchasing.

"The other member should recognize that failure to respond to this gesture will probably mean another round of fighting will begin."

Manila Says Peace Ball 'Now in Hanoi's Court'

MANILA (AP) — The seven anti-Communist allies with troops fighting in South Viet Nam have resolved to pursue the war there "until the Communist aggression is ended," but offered then to withdraw foreign forces within six months if North Viet Nam pulls out of the south and violence ebbs.

The offer bore down on the central argument raised by the Communist side — that the United States intends to stay indefinitely and that no peace is possible without American withdrawal.

The offer was in a final communiqué.

DALLAS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador to UN Arthur Goldberg said Tuesday there are a "few faint signals" the North Vietnamese may want to talk about peace.

"But it would be wrong to say they are more than faint," Goldberg said at a news conference. "They would have to get a lot stronger for us to expect any dramatic development."

Summing up

Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand summed it up: "The ball is now in North Viet Nam's court."

Concerning the anti-Communist foreign forces in South Viet Nam, now numbering 370,000, the communiqué said:

"They shall be withdrawn, after close consultation, as the other side withdraws its forces to the north, ceases infiltration and the level of violence thus subsides. Those forces will be withdrawn as soon as possible and not later than six months after the above conditions have been fulfilled."

U.S. sources noted it would take at least six months to withdraw the huge force, including 330,000 Americans.

The South Vietnamese government subscribed to the withdrawal, but its own qualification was embodied in the communiqué. It said South Viet Nam, mindful of past experience, would "insist that any negotiations leading to the end of hostilities

'Don't Let Them Bury Truth'

Grieving Miners Accost Investigator

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — Two angry miners who lost relatives in the Aberfan coal slag disaster broke through a police cordon Tuesday and accosted the Welsh-born judge who will conduct Britain's public inquiry into the tragedy.

"Don't let them pull the wool over your eyes," shouted Philip Brown, 61.

Lord Justice Sir Edmund Davies, born only a few miles from Aberfan, was paying his first visit since a towering slag heap slid down on the village school and nearby homes Friday, killing nearly 200 children.

Police tried to hold back the two miners but Davies beckoned them forward. He listened intently as David Jones, 40, told him:

"We couldn't stand the thought of the truth being hidden under a pack of lies. This whole terrible business was unnecessary — we've been complaining about the tip (slag heap) for years."

Both miners told the judge that a mountain spring, which is thought to have caused the heap to collapse, was long known to be in existence.

Bereaved parents and other residents of Aberfan have blamed the national coal board, which runs the Crown-owned mines, for allowing the pile of coal waste to grow to a hazardous size.

Davies told a news conference in nearby Merthyr that he will never allow the public inquiry to become a whitewash.

"The inquiry will be of a most searching character," the judge said. "If there is blame shown, the blame will be cast.

"Nor will there be unnecessary blackening of anybody. We shall be animated by the desire to serve the public interest and nothing else."

With 145 bodies, mostly children, recovered from the shattered school and adjoining houses, police estimated that at least 46 dead children still were to be found.

Thursday, when at least 75 of the child victims will be given a mass burial, was proclaimed a day of mourning throughout the Welsh valleys.

Veteran Trustee Blames Chairman

'No Support in Teacher Salary Talks'

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Gerald W. Gray, who resigned from the board of School District 70 earlier this month after serving for 28 years, says he has been approached to run again this fall and may do so "but not unless there is different leadership."

Mr. Gray explained he had resigned after acting as chairman of the salary committee for more than 12 years.

"My committee met the teachers' committee last May and negotiated what I considered a very good salary agreement," the ex-trustee said. "The teachers agreed, and then the school board turned it down."

SLAP IN FACE

"Many of the teachers considered this a slap in the face," Mr. Gray said, an outside negotiator from the School Trustees' Association has been brought in to continue negotiations, but that he felt salaries should be negotiated locally by the local board.

"The Alberni Valley is not getting the class of teachers it should be getting," Mr. Gray said in an interview. "If they presently live in Vancouver or the lower mainland, they would rather be in Nanaimo or Qualicum than the Alberni."

WIDE CHOICE

"The trustees' association wants salaries all over the island the same. Naturally, good teachers who have a wide choice of locations choose places like Victoria's outskirts, and places with easy access before the more remote areas."

At present, he said, teachers are still being paid on the basis of arbitrated settlements made last December.

NO BACKING

Mr. Gray said he had considered resigning last May when the school board did not back up his negotiations with the teachers. However, he said he decided to adopt a wait-and-see policy, but appointment of a trustees' association negotiator had finally triggered his resignation.

Mr. Gray blamed the school board chairman, R. G. Christie, for the school board's failure to back his committee's negotiations last spring.

AGREED TO OFFER

"Mr. Christie was on my committee. But when the negotiations came under discussion, he never backed me up, even though he agreed to the offer at the time it was made."

"Carl Anshelm, didn't want the settlement made either," Mr. Gray said. "He spoke actively against it, and wanted the trustees' association of which he was Island president at that time, to handle it."

NO ADVANTAGE

Asked if there was any advantage to having the negotiations handled through the association, Mr. Gray replied: "None that I can see. We pay a fee of over $3,000 a year to the association and I don't see what we get for it. We don't even see any of the officials. All we get is a lot of propaganda through the mail."

DO WHAT THEY LIKE

"Had the company started out by telling all that we now know will happen, it would never have been given permission to take the first step. The public would never have stood for it. But now the screws are being turned tighter."

"It seems that major corporations like Consolidated Mining and Smelting, which is the major shareholder in Western Mines, can do what they like in this province," he said.

Campbell Suggests ACT Role

NANAIMO—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell told 100 delegates to a recent Associated Canadian Travellers convention the organization had a unique opportunity to assist the provincial highways department.

Mr. Campbell, in a speech to the group, said: "More than any other group in the province you can help B.C. and Canada by suggesting safety improvements to the highways department."

UNIQUE GROUP

He said members were unique in that they travel throughout the province consistently more than anyone else.

A show of hands at the convention indicated members travelled an average of 5,000 miles a week without serious accidents.

WORK CLOSELY

Representing the city, Ald. Mega McDougall said, "The provincial government should work closely with the Associated Canadian Travellers as they are the one organization in our province able to give points on safety about Canadian highways."

tions, but that he felt salaries should be negotiated locally by the local board.

"The Alberni Valley is not getting the class of teachers it should be getting," Mr. Gray said in an interview. "If they presently live in Vancouver or the lower mainland, they would rather be in Nanaimo or Qualicum than the Alberni."

Russians Look At B.C. Forest Industry

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

Six Russian forestry experts met Resources Minister Ray Williston here Tuesday, to find out how British Columbia manages its huge forest products industry.

The delegation, headed by Mikhail Vasilievich Kanevsky, chief of the logging branch of the Russian Ministry for Timber, Pulp and Wood Processing Industry, spent the whole day in the Legislative Buildings.

The Russians met with Mr. Williston in the morning and spent the afternoon with John Stokes, B.C.'s assistant chief forester.

NATIONAL TOUR

The minister said later that the Russians, members of a technical exchange group on a nationwide tour of Canadian forestry operations, were particularly interested in forest fire protection, reforestation programs and general administrative practices concerning forest lands and land ownership.

Hilding Ekblad, of the Vancouver consulting engineering firm of Sandwell and Company Ltd., who accompanied the Russians, said in an interview the Russians wanted to know "how much effect the government has on the forest industry."

COMPLETE CONTROL

He said they were informed that "Mr. Williston 'exercises complete control' because of the fact that the provincial government owns 95 per cent of the forests in this province."

Mr. Williston was surprised to learn of the Russians' interest in forest ownership. But he conceded that government ownership of the resources "is an unusual circumstance in forested areas throughout the world today."

OTHER MEMBERS

Other members of the Russian delegation were Nikolai Ivanovich Berezin, chief engineer of the Arkhangelsk Forestry Branch; Ivan Alexandrovich Ermolinsky, deputy chief of logging branch of the Ministry of Forestry in Moscow; Anatoli Matveevich

Mr. Gray claimed geographical location, distance from ferry transportation to the mainland, pollution and weather conditions keep the district from getting the teachers it should, if the uniform Island salary plan prevails.

PASSING IT OFF

"They're trying to pass it off by saying how fine it is to have teachers from other parts of the world to broaden our children's horizons," Mr. Gray said, "and the teachers we have garnered from far-off places may indeed be excellent."

But it is always taking a chance to make last-minute appointments. This would not have been necessary if local salaries could have been negotiated by the local board."

Taxpayer Urges Change In Ambulance Service

PORT ALBERNI—A taxpayer, wrathful about what he feels is the ineffective operation of the local ambulance service, was asked by city council Monday night to present a brief and witnesses to back up his claims.

Robert Duggan, who acted on the corner's jury enquiring into the traffic death of Mrs. Katherine Frytek early this month, claimed that the jury learned 45 minutes had elapsed from the time Mrs. Frytek was struck until she arrived at hospital.

He urged that the ambulance be removed from present operation and placed under a full-time crew.

COUNCIL DISAGREES

The mayor and council disagreed. Every complaint was investigated and none had been found to be valid, it was stated. Alderman Cole, chairman of the committee which includes ambulance and health and welfare, repeated his assertion at the previous council meeting, that only 17 minutes elapsed from the time the right number was called until the ambulance had deposited Mrs. Frytek at the emergency door of the hospital.

NO COMPLAINTS

Mayor Hammer asked why the city should change its ambulance service "when we have no complaints." However, the mayor said, it is planned to have the ambulance handled by the fire department when the new city firehall is built.

At present the ambulance operates from Miller Motors Limited. A phone call to the special ambulance number alerts the operator on a 24-hour switchboard, who then calls the ambulance operator on duty for that shift. Sometimes the ambulance driver must dash from his own home by car to the garage to get the ambulance before heading for the scene of the emergency.

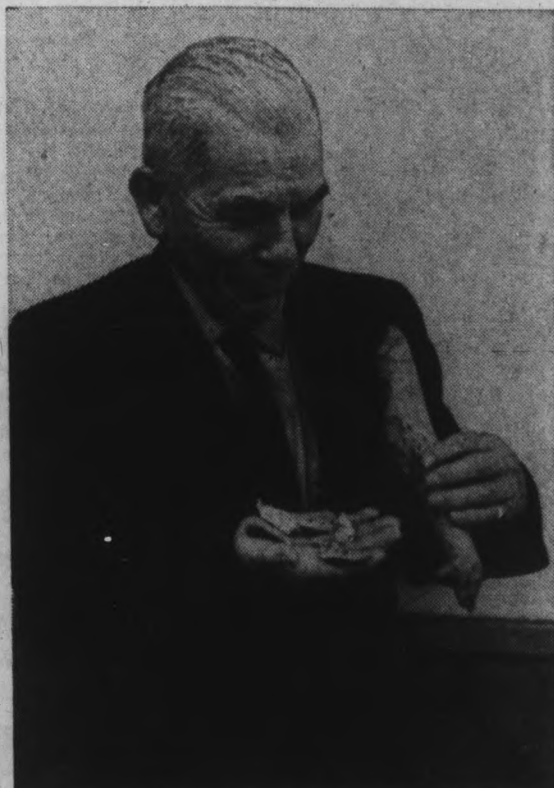

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

In a recent discussion, Ald. Cole said he had been approached by the drivers with a request for some sort of identification for their cars that would permit them to make the trip from home to ambulance garage more speedily.

A council report Monday night revealed authorization had been given for the printing of emergency numbers on a list which will be distributed to all property owners, and which will be made available to those residents who are not property owners.

The ambulance number 723-2522, was omitted from the list of emergency numbers in the front of the telephone book, and is hard to find in the small print among the "As" council heard recently.

Beavers Return To Galiano After 70 Years

By MARY BACKLUND

GALIANO ISLAND — Beaver have returned to Galiano Island after an absence of more than 70 years.

Owners of the Valley Ranch, Mr. and Mrs. John Rees and family, are not happy with their newest tenants.

In certain periods of the year, the elements and topography have combined to provide the fields with an abundance of water in the wrong places!

DITCHING NEEDED

This gave rise to a requirement for ditching to contain the surplus water and allow the Rees family to farm the fields. Ditching proceeded last fall and through the spring, and some improvement in the crops was evident.

Further ditching started this fall, and then the Rees family encountered some natural opposition in the presence of the mysterious beaver.

SLOW CREEK

Tom Carlson, who lives nearby in the Valley, is caretaker of the 126-acre ranch in the Rees' absence during the week. During the course of his duties of checking the property fences last week he noticed that Murcheson Creek was not running with its usual vigor.

His curiosity was aroused, and on tracing the stream bed, he discovered the presence of beaver in the form of one large completed dam about four feet high, and one semi-completed dam.

BEAVER SIGNS

Mr. Carlson spent many of his former years in the interior of British Columbia, and it was easy for him to immediately recognize beaver signs, as he is an experienced woodsman.

In conversation with life-long resident Archie Georgeson, 72, a well-known pioneer of Galiano Island, Mr. Carlson found that there were beaver on the island more than 70 years ago.

Mr. Georgeson tells of at least five dams on other parts of the island, but does not recall ever seeing one in this particular valley.

While the majority of the Rees family share the excitement of beaver in the valley, Mr. Rees is not entirely appreciative of Mr. Beaver's new domicile.

While he can but applaud the technical merit relating to the damming of its presence, Either Mr. Beaver has to find a new home, or the Valley Ranch will be sporting a large lake. Needless to say, the ditching has been temporarily suspended!

Dr. Clifford Carl, curator of the provincial museum, said Tuesday he's surprised that beaver have returned to Galiano Island.

"After such a long absence, I would not think they would have returned," he said. "They have migrated to Galiano by salt water, which is unusual."

Dr. Carl said he'd be interested to see how long the beaver colony survived on an island where freshwater streams, the animals' habitat, are scarce and uncertain.

CONSTANT SEARCH

However, the migration of beaver to Galiano — the only Gulf island on which the animal so far has been found — illustrates how creatures are constantly searching out new territories.

"It is generally accepted that British Columbia, including the off-coast islands, was swept clear of all living things during the last Ice Age," said Dr. Carl.

CAME AFTER ICE

"Populations of plants and animals as we know them today became established after the ice left."

However, not all species have taken part in such migrations. "Some common and well-known animals are not found on Vancouver Island although living conditions are apparently no different from those on the adjacent coast," said Dr. Carl.

MANY MISSING

There are no coyotes, grizzly bears, moose, wild rabbits, skunks, porcupines, moles, pack rats, bobcats or chipmunks on Vancouver Island.

Dr. Carl speculated that animals which moved to Vancouver Island came either over ice bridges with the mainland or on debris which was swept into the ocean by landslides.

NANAIMO—Police said Tuesday a plan by two Nanaimo boys to blow up a wooden tower at the abandoned Morden Mine near here with dynamite as a Halloween prank has been foiled.

The boys, 16 and 17 years of age, were placed under curfew by a juvenile court judge and remanded for pre-sentence reports to Nov. 14.

More Studies Needed On Sewage Disposal

PORT ALBERNI—Mayor Les Hammer delivered a report to city council Monday night on a recent meeting between representatives of MacMillan Bloedel and city council to explore possibilities of joint disposal of city sewage and plant effluent.

The delegation was made up of Mayor Hammer, City Manager Dennis Train and General Superintendent Len Crowshaw, supported by D. Stewart and Mr. Ralston of Associated Engineering Services Limited.

"No firm conclusions can be reached at this time," the mayor said, "the current series of studies by Stanley Associates are in preliminary stages only."

Although the studies may not be finalized until five or six months from now, the company has promised a further discussion when their investigations have progressed to a decisive point on the feasibility or otherwise of joint disposal.

DOUBLE SAVINGS

Mayor Hammer said civic representatives had stressed the fact that in addition to the savings according to both parties in the event of joint treatment, the city would also be able to benefit from any economy which can be practiced by the city.

PORT ALBERNI—Mayor Les Hammer, one of two municipal officials in B.C. to be invited to attend the Canadian resources ministers' conference on pollution, leaves Sunday for the conference in Montreal.

The mayor took along a large ring-binder manual to Monday's council meeting to acquaint those present with the scope of the conference.

"There will be 600 participants and 400 observers," Mayor Hammer said in an interview.

ONLY TWO

"The mayor of Trail and myself are the only municipal officials in B.C. who have been invited to attend by Mr. Williston. I feel most fortunate to have this opportunity to get in on what is certainly the largest conference of its kind ever held."

The mayor said that while he did not expect to come home with all the answers, he certainly will return home with much more knowledge of pollution problems elsewhere as well as in the Alberni Valley and perhaps with new ideas on controls.

WONDERFUL CHANCE

"Because of our local problems, and because of my own personal interest in the subject, I feel this is a wonderful opportunity for us to benefit from the many experts who will be attending," the mayor said, adding that the city would benefit without cost to the municipality. Costs will be borne by senior government sources.

Two Injured In Crash

CHEMUNUS—Two men are in Chemunus hospital with back injuries following a single car accident Tuesday on Trans-Canada Highway north of Chemunus River Road.

Daryl Aird of Ladysmith, driver of the car, is in good condition with severe lacerations to his back. Wayne Gagnon of Ladysmith, a passenger in the car, is in fair condition with severe back injuries.

Both were thrown from the car when it left the road. RCMP said the 1955 model car was a total wreck.

Break-Ins

Thieves Hit Nanaimo

NANAIMO—A rash of break-ins were reported Tuesday.

At Bastion and Skinner Streets, Dr. McKerricher's office and the adjoining American Optical office were broken into, but only $1 was taken from the doctor's cash box.

On Stewart Ave., the Texaco plant was entered and $25 in postage stamps taken. Premises at 570 Stewart Ave. suffered a smashed lock but no theft.

Wilton Motors lost $74 in car parts when a 1966 Mini Austin in front of their showroom was stripped.

Drennan Rites Set

CHEMUNUS — Funeral service will be held today in Hirst Funeral Chapel, Duncan, for Alexander Gordon Drennan who died in Chemunus hospital Sunday at the age of 77.

Mr. Drennan was born in La Schutte, Que. He had farmed in Saskatchewan. He was employed by the CPR from 1940 until his retirement in 1954.

In 1956 he moved to B.C. He had lived six years in Chemunus.

Besides his wife Mary he is survived by two sons, two daughters, 10 grandchildren, two brothers and two sisters.

Ring of Humor Showing Around Bathtub Event

NANAIMO—Glen Galloway, co-worker with Frank Ney on Nanaimo's bathtub race, has indicated that the whole event might have a ring of humor about it.

Co-ordinator of the idea, Mr. Galloway sees many of the humorous aspects, but confessed that regulations concerning safety afloat had not been considered in depth by him.

Mr. Ney has been out of town for several days and was not available for comment.

Galloway has tested several types of bathtub, in their original forms, such as the old galvanized bathtub type which he says gives six inches freeboard but the cast iron types take two men to lift on dry land, and he is loath to sail them.

The bathtubs will actually be fiber glass mouldings of a regular tub and available to entrants at cost of $25.

The mouldings of two layers take a full day per tub in manufacturing.

All safety and motive equipment must be supplied by the entrant.

No date has been set for the event, but the proposed prizes are $100, $50 and $25 for the first three to complete the course from Nanaimo to Vancouver, claimed Mr. Galloway.

With tongue in cheek, he said that there would be no limit on the crew, and a limit of three masts, for the sea-going bathtubs.

Thieves Net
Radios, TVs

DUNCAN—About $1,600 worth of goods was stolen from a downtown appliance shop.

J. B. Electronics, 181 Station St., reported the theft. Three portable television sets, 21 transistor radios, one walkie-talkie set and an electric radio were found missing Tuesday morning.

Neither bathtubs (two tubs with a common deck), outriggers for one tub, nor hydrofoil equipped tubs have been considered.

"Nanaimo Power Squadron will volunteer to accompany any bathtub racers as they possibly can," said Alex Smith, commander of the squadron.

"Water safety is one of our main interests," he explained.

"All of the equipment for safety afloat is mandatory," he added, listing such items as buoys, oars or paddles, life jackets and running lights.

TWO ENTRANTS

To date, only two entrants for the race have been officially recorded—the Nanaimo Jaycees and Aris Rens-Car.

The bathtub race, being still new, has many regulations yet to be considered, but safety will be of prime importance, indicated Mr. Galloway.

"I wouldn't miss it for the world. If no one else goes, I will," said Mr. Galloway.

Municipal Heads to Hear Oak Bay Hospital Formula

A meeting will be held today in the office of Mayor Toone to discuss an Oak Bay proposal for hospital financing.

Vote 'Unfair'

Saanich Plan Soon?

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich said Monday night he hopes his council next week will have "something for discussion" on the question of financing hospital construction.

He is among the municipal representatives who today will be discussing financing proposals.

Reeve Curtis said he hoped the provincial government wouldn't force a vote on raising the local share of hospital building costs, a situation which would "be the same as last year."

The reeve commented after Coun. Digby Kier said it would be "most unfair" to repeat a referendum on the question of a two-mill property tax for such purposes.

"I hope that Oak Bay has something forthcoming," he said.

There are reports that Oak Bay may suggest future increases in per capita grants to hospital construction.

Reeve Allan Cox said Monday he was not prepared to discuss details of his proposal, but said the heads of municipalities who will attend the meeting had all been provided with written copies. He said he expected that the Oak Bay formula would be only one aspect of the whole problem which would be discussed.

STatement

"All members of my council know about the proposal and I have been authorized to bring it forward at this meeting. I expect that there will be a statement from the mayor following the discussion," the reeve said Monday.

The gravity of the hospital bed situation has been pointed up recently by several meetings of the Greater Victoria Hospital Planning Council.

At one of the meetings, Ald. Hugh Stephen urged that a professional company be called in to make a survey of hospital needs. The suggestion was later repeated at a meeting of Oak Bay council.

GRANTS EARMARKED

Among the other suggestions put forward for financing was that future increases in provincial per-capita grants be earmarked for hospital construction.

At a recent meeting of the Vancouver Island Regional Hospital Council, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell indicated that there would be grant increases in 1967.

A referendum was held last December on the question of district municipalities allocating the sum of two mills on the tax rate for hospital construction. The plan was defeated.

One Dissenter

Esquimalt Sees Need for Study

All Esquimalt council members but one agreed Monday night with the proposed hospital construction need study.

Coun. Arthur Mebe cast the only vote in opposition to the study.

Council also decided to suggest to the international committee that the provincial government be asked to share in the study costs.

Coun. Mebe questioned the advisability of hiring an eastern firm to do the study.

be solved by our own local people."

He said there had been study after study, and hardly any of them had been implemented.

"I don't know if I'm in favor of another study."

He added that the cost of the study was 'terrible'.

Coun. Gerald Horne disagreed and pointed out that the library study and the one on juvenile delinquency are being implemented, and the recently brought-in sewer study will be put to work in the near future.

Welsh in Victoria Raise Aberfan Fund

Pledges for $2,000 have been received for the Aberfan Disaster Fund, being administered by the Cymrodorion Society of Victoria for the relief of those stricken by the disastrous slack slide in the village of Aberfan, South Wales, last week.

Arrangements were made Monday for contributions to be made at the Imperial Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Cornwall.

Society president Phyllis Hill and secretary June Richardson are in charge of the fund.

Victor Williams, past president of the society, said Monday his phone and those of Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Richardson were ringing constantly Sunday with offers of assistance.

Mr. Williams said he received several calls from Vancouver. The Welsh people in that city and several others across Canada have since emulated the Victoria society's action and are collecting funds.

Robber Strikes During Lunch

A thief made off with $40 from a provincial government office at 780 Blanshard during lunch-hour Monday.

Sometime between noon and 12:30 p.m. the money was taken from a wallet belonging to Miss Shirley Mitchell, 1513 Hampshire.

Request for Inquiry Now Made Official

Saanich Monday night officially asked the department of municipal affairs for a public inquiry into the dealings of a real estate company involving some municipal employees.

At a brief meeting, councillors unanimously ratified a request made to the department by Reeve Hugh Curtis last Thursday.

It asked the provincial government for an inquiry into the affairs and transactions of Royal Oak Estates Ltd., with special emphasis on the relationships of Saanich employees to the company.

When it announced the inquiry last week, Saanich council said it did not think any wrongdoing was intended when some employees of the assessor's department formed the company.

The company was described by council as a type of investment club.

Monday night, Coun. Leslie Passmore read a statement, which was endorsed by the reeve:

"The passing of this motion (ratifying the calling of an inquiry) does not suggest in any way that the matter to be inquired into has been prejudged by council.

"On the contrary, the previous statement that council feels no wrongdoing has been done still stands.

"However, questions have been asked of councillors regarding a situation in municipal hall and clarification of the rights and responsibilities of municipal employees is necessary.

"It is hoped that an inquiry by the department of municipal affairs will result in specific directives governing the conduct of all employees and elected representatives."

Esquimalt Approves Winter Works Plan

A $23,000 winter works program was set by Esquimalt council Monday night.

The municipality's parks and playgrounds will get $8,000, and of this $2,000 will go towards the construction of a club house at Fleming Beach to be used by the Esquimalt Anglers' Association.

The association agreed to share in the cost of construction.

PARK WORK

Work will be done on Saxe Point, Memorial, Kinsmen-Gorge, and Lamson Parks.

Two municipal lot-lots will also share in the winter works program.

Masonry work and drilling will account for $5,000 of the winter works budget, and remainder will go toward municipal boulevards.

OPEN HALL

Council agreed with the recreation commission on its proposed opening of Jubilee Hall twice a week for senior citizens' activities.

Coun. James Bryant said there are 183 Esquimalt senior residents presently using Victoria's senior citizens facilities.

GREAT POTENTIAL. He told council Esquimalt has 1,020 residents over 65 years of age, and there is a great potential within the municipality for the development of a senior citizens recreational program.

Council also approved $100 to the Esquimalt Lions' Club for refreshments for the children at the two Hallowe'en bonfires. One fire is planned for Fleming Beach, and the other on the Esquimalt high school grounds.

Their Angle Illegal

Three teen-agers, believed to be aged between 12 and 14, went fishing in an unusual and illegal way Saturday.

They were seen standing on a step-ladder on the east side of the Crystal Garden with a large pole.

Apparently they were fishing through an open window for property in a dressing room, police said.

A check of the area failed to locate the culprits.

Site Plans Halted

The Witty brothers said Monday they've been "bucked every way" in their plans to develop a seaside site now wanted by the regional board.

Stanley and Leslie Witty said they wanted to build a trailer court and picnic site on property owned by the family for 101 years.

"We've been bucked every way," they said in an interview. "It took us six months to get one of the permits."

OFFER REJECTED

They have rejected an offer of $100,000 from the regional board, which wants to acquire the 40 acres as a park.

The board has given three readings to a bylaw to start expropriation proceedings.

The Wittys explained they planned to retire soon and wanted to build a trailer park and picnic area as a small commercial operation.

Leslie Witty explained that he and his brother had promised Recreation Minister Kiernan the provincial government would be chase if they ever decided to sell.

The government has offered them $175,000, which they also have rejected.

The brothers said that if they developed the property as a trailer park and picnic area there would probably be a charge of 25 cents for each person going through the gates.

Medicare Leaps First Hurdle

OTTAWA (CP) — The medicare insurance bill received approval in principle by a vote of 182 to 21 in the Commons Tuesday night.

The Conservative and Social Credit parties split on second reading after an acrimonious eight-day debate.

The bill was opposed by 10 Conservatives, seven Creditists, two Social Credit members and two independents.

The legislation still requires clause-by-clause study and third reading, which could be a lengthy process since opposition parties have promised to introduce many amendments.

Ottawa Conference

This Is Day They Walk On Eggs

By RON COLLISTER,
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This is the day that makes or breaks the federal-provincial conference here.

The federal government was to make its final, take-it-or-leave-it proposals in two crucial areas:

- The phasing out of Ottawa aid for vocational and technical schools over a six-year period starting next March.
- Many of the provinces were bitterly critical of the impact of this on them, and Ottawa agreed to reconsider this particular proposal. (See story on Page 15.)

Gas Sales Up To $106,000,971

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government Tuesday received $29,444,000 in the sale of petroleum and natural gas leases in the largest sale of its kind here this year. The total boosted the government's 1966 earnings on similar sales to $106,000,971 compared with $133,932,946 in 1965.

Hope Fades For Miners

Mail Trucks Keep Crown

Leaf Plan Withers

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday that the government has backed away from a post office plan to remove the Canadian coat-of-arms and the words royal mail from postal trucks.

He sparked a Commons uproar when he charged that the Liberals "remove the Crown" at every opportunity. They "endeavored, by stealth, to get away with this and got caught." Now the government was taking its usual course — running away.

Acting Prime Minister Martin angrily denied that the government has taken steps to remove references to the Queen. He said Liberals are as loyal to the Queen as is the Conservative chief.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux had trouble keeping order.

The unscheduled debate began when Postmaster-General Cote read a four-page statement saying information from his department formed the basis for an Oct. 13 report that the coat-of-arms and the words royal mail gradually would be replaced by a maple leaf emblem on postal trucks.

This had been published before the matter could be studied by the cabinet, however, and he regretted any misunderstandings.

He had ordered the preparation of a simple symbol for the post office, but had no "intention of interfering with the proper use of any existing symbol."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the postmaster-general's explanation "just cannot hold water."

He read a Commons exchange of Oct. 14 when Mr. Cote, asked whether the coat-of-arms would be removed and replaced by another symbol, had replied: "Yes, Mr. Speaker, We are going to adopt an emblem, which will represent a truly Canadian post office and which will give a real interpretation to the post office act."

NDP Leader Douglas said the Liberals again were showing "their genius for stumbling from crisis to crisis."

CAR DEAL QUERIED

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury told the Commons Tuesday the revenue department is conducting a "semi-judicial investigation" into a car import transaction involving Studebaker and Volkswagen.

Revenue Minister Benson confirmed that the transaction is under investigation.

Neither minister offered a direct reply when T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, asked whether they were aware the transaction involved Studebaker of Canada buying Volkswagens in the U.S., importing them into Canada duty-free under the Canada-U.S. auto agreement and then reselling them to Volkswagen at a "handsome profit."

MOTION REJECTED

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux disallowed a motion by Alfred Hales (PC — Wellington South) for an emergency debate on the issue.

Mr. Drury, Mr. Benson, External Affairs Minister Martin and John Turner, minister without portfolio, all argued against an emergency debate.

DEAL MADE

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) said Studebaker, in the throes of going out of business at Hamilton, made a deal with another company to evade duty and that the government was party to the deal.

Mr. Benson said a letter was written to officials of his department asking whether a transaction would fall under the terms of the car treaty, which permits Canadian car manufacturers to import foreign cars or parts duty-free.

A department official had replied that if the transaction was carried out in a certain way it would fall under the terms.

THE QUESTION

The question now is, Mr. Benson said, whether the transaction was carried out in conformity with the opinion given by the department official.

Mr. Benson did not reveal the names of the writer of the original letter or of the official who replied.

Labor Wins Freeze

LONDON (UPI) — The House of Commons Tuesday night approved the Labor government's compulsory freeze on wages and prices by a vote of 307-239.

The order made violators liable to $1,400 fine.

An estimated 26 Labor left-wingers, led by former technology minister Frank Cousins who sees the freeze as unwarranted state interference with the right of the trade union bargaining powers, defied a parliamentary order and abstained from voting.

They will probably face disciplinary action from the Labor members of parliament and could be expelled.

Fights Inevitable

All Those Socks Could Mean Wedded Bliss

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A spirited spat is good for most marriages, a psychiatrist said Tuesday, but watch out for overkill.

"Marriage fights have the character of a pitched battle," said Dr. Alfred D. Messer.

"Not only does one want to defeat the opposition, but defeat him so soundly that he will never rise again."

He told the American Psychiatric Association convention that arguments are inevitable in a marriage and probably offer one of the best ways couples have to work out touchy problems.

"Two individuals who live intimately together must occasionally frustrate one another," said Messer, an Emory University professor.

Neither spouse makes much of these problems — toothpaste tubes squeezed in the middle, dirty socks on the floor, burned potatoes, broken budgets — until they build up to a flashpoint, Messer said.

"There is an explosion," he said. "One partner will then drag out a catalogue of these incidents in an attempt to 'slay' the other partner."

"What is said in the heat of battle cannot, of course, be taken as the whole truth," he said. Husband and wife must keep in mind the theme of the fight and not concentrate too hard on the particulars.

"When most of the frustrations have been talked out or discharged in some vicarious way," he said, the fight can be ended. At this point one partner will release a coy dove of peace.

"The gesture itself may be quite innocuous. A woman may decide to bake a particular food her husband likes, or mend his sock; a husband may decide to buy a particular household item the couple had talked about purchasing."

"The other member should recognize that failure to respond to this gesture will probably mean another round of fighting will begin."

Manila Says Peace Ball 'Now in Hanoi's Court'

MANILA (AP) — The seven anti-Communist allies with troops fighting in South Viet Nam have resolved to pursue the war there "until the Communist aggression is ended," but offered then to withdraw foreign forces within six months if North Viet Nam pulls out of the south and violence ebbs.

The offer bore down on the central argument raised by the Communist side — that the United States intends to stay indefinitely and that no peace is possible without American withdrawal.

The offer was in a final communique of the seven-country anti-Communist summit meeting in Manila, which also produced a statement on the Goals of Freedom and a Declaration of Peace and Progress in Asia and the Pacific.

SUMMING UP

Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand summed it up: "The ball is now in North Viet Nam's court."

Concerning the anti-Communist foreign forces in South Viet Nam, the communique said: "They shall be withdrawn."

DALLAS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador to UN Arthur Goldberg said Tuesday there are a "few faint signals" the North Vietnamese may want to talk about peace.

"But it would be wrong to say they are more than faint," Goldberg said at a news conference. "They would have to get a lot stronger for us to expect any dramatic development."

after close consultation, as the other side withdraws its forces to the north, ceases infiltration and the level of violence thus subsides. Those forces will be withdrawn as soon as possible and not later than six months after the above conditions have been fulfilled."

U.S. sources noted it would take at least six months to withdraw the huge force, including 330,000 Americans.

The South Vietnamese government subscribed to the withdrawal, but its own qualification was embodied in the communique. It said South Viet Nam, mindful of past experience, would "insist that any negotiations leading to the end of hostilities

Johnson in Viet Nam

BULLETIN

SAIGON (AP) — President Johnson has landed at Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon, high Vietnamese officials reported today.

MANILLA (UPI) — President Johnson flew to memory-haunted Corregidor today and then suddenly disappeared from his official schedule. There was every indication the American president had made a dramatic visit to Viet Nam.

A cloak of silence fell on Johnson's activities at midday when he took off for "The Rock" where American forces held out to utter exhaustion before surrendering to the Japanese in the Second World War.

Johnson was believed to have flown to Da Nang, the huge coastal marine base in South Viet Nam. He was expected to return to Manila Wednesday night and continue Thursday his scheduled 25,000-mile tour capping the Asian summit conference.

A military spokesman at Corregidor said only that the presidential party had "come and gone." After that, silence.

The president did not show up as scheduled at 4 p.m. (1 a.m. EDT) for a reception at the United States embassy with the American community in Manila. Ambassador William M. Blair Jr., said the president would not be there, apologized for his absence but would not say where he had gone.

Mrs. Johnson stayed in Manila and addressed the gathering in the president's absence. Then she said she was going to "take a nap."

Carrier On Fire

SAIGON (UPI) — Fire broke out aboard the 7th fleet carrier USS Oriskany in the Gulf of Tonkin off North Viet Nam today. The navy said at least 35 men were dead.

There was no indication whether enemy action had caused the blaze aboard the Oriskany which with the carriers Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Constellation had bombed North Viet Nam almost daily for months.

Virus Halts Vanier Trip

OTTAWA (CP) — A virus infection has forced Governor-General Vanier to cancel his engagements for the next few days and also postpone a visit to Prince Edward Island next week, it was announced Tuesday.

'Don't Let Them Bury Truth'

Grieving Miners Accost Investigator

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — Two angry miners who lost relatives in the Aberfan coal slag disaster broke through a police cordon Tuesday and accosted the Welsh-born judge who will conduct Britain's public inquiry into the tragedy.

"Don't let them pull the wool over your eyes," shouted Philip Brown, 61.

Lord Justice Sir Edmund Davies, born only a few miles from Aberfan, was paying his first visit since a towering slag heap slid down on the village school and nearby homes Friday, killing nearly 200 children.

Police tried to hold back the two miners but Davies beckoned them forward. He listened intently as David Jones, 40, told him:

"We couldn't stand the thought of the truth being hidden under a pack of lies. This whole terrible business was unnecessary — we've been complaining about the tip (slag heap) for years."

Both miners told the judge that a mountain spring, which is thought to have caused the heap to collapse, was long known to be in existence.

Bereaved parents and other residents of Aberfan have blamed the national coal board, which runs the Crown-owned mines, for allowing the pile of coal waste to grow to a hazardous size.

Davies told a news conference in nearby Merthyr that he will never allow the public inquiry to become a whitewash.

"The inquiry will be of a most searching character," the judge said. "If there is blame shown, the blame will be cast.

"Nor will there be unnecessary blackening of anybody. We shall be animated by the desire to serve the public interest and nothing else."

With 145 bodies, mostly children, recovered from the shattered school and adjoining houses, police estimated that at least 46 dead children still were to be found.

Thursday, when at least 75 of the child victims will be given a mass burial, was proclaimed a day of mourning throughout the Welsh valleys.
